V10N2

February 2012

Welcome to the V10N2 February 2012 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers the Tutorial Online Resources 2012. These sites, resources and tools bring together all the latest information for finding information concerning tutorial resources and sites available online through the Internet. Many of these resources represent the latest mashups, latest large data archives, and other newly transparent data sources for the web, social informatics and databases. Resources for this report were taken from my below Subject Tracers™:

dotEPUB - Push-button Cloud-based e-Book Maker

<http://dotepub.com/>

dotEPUB is software in the cloud that allows you to convert any webpage into an e-book. For content consumers (readers), they have developed a bookmarklet (or favlet) for Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox, Safari or Opera. And, if you are a Google Chrome user, you can install the dotEPUB extension in your browser. For content producers (editors, authors), they offer a widget. See the tips for webmasters. For more customizable results, developers can use our API. Features include: a) Download webpages to any epub-compatible device: e-readers, tablets, smartphones, netbooks, desktop computers... b) Save now and immersively read later (even offline) those long and deep articles you didn't have time to read while browsing. Build a personal library of your favorite blog posts, news articles, etc. c) Compatible with the iPhone, the iPod Touch, the iPad, the Sony Reader, the Nook, the iLiad, the BeBook, the Cool-er, the CyBook, the Alex eReader, the Kobo eReader, the Elonex eBook, the eSlick, the eClicto, the Hanlin eReader, the QUE ProReader, the Papyre, the Leqtor... and d) Finally, infinite content for your e-reader... with a single click! And, because it is software in the cloud, you benefit from the improvements of future releases without having to re-install anything. LiveMinutes - Makes Meetings Simple and Collaborative

<http://liveminutes.com/>

Say you need to rapidly discuss a document (ppt, xls, doc) with your peers. Today you send it by email, or via DropBox, call your peers, everyone opens the document on his own and starts discussing, but you don't know if you're all on the same page, literally. With LiveMinutes, just share a meeting link with your peer, upload your docs, discuss and annotate them in real-time (in-browser audio or Skype), and capture the meeting's interaction in beautiful reports! This works great for discussing a presentation, a PhotoShop design, or an Excel budget. The meeting might start with a discussion on a document, but often participants need to draw a schema or fetch content on the Web. LiveMinutes integrates all these tools in one. At the end of the meeting, LiveMinutes generates a beautiful report capturing the meeting's interaction. Teams can keep track of meetings and decisions made, and pass the information to others. Marker.to - Simple Annotation Tool

<http://marker.to/>

Have you ever used a marker pen for highlighting your paper documents? Marker.to will do the same for webpages! After you install a browser extension or bookmarklet and run Marker simply by clicking on the icon, you can highlight text on a website with your mouse. Annotating helps to point out important information in long articles. Their annotator creates a special link for the highlighted version of the page (like <http://marker.to/XYZ123>). You can share it through Twitter, Facebook, e-mail, IM etc. Or just bookmark it with your favorite bookmarking tool, i.e. Delicious. You can view highlighted page with any browser! No bookmarklet or browser extension is necessary for viewing. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Breakout Labs

<http://www.breakoutlabs.org/>

Breakout Labs is the Thiel Foundation's newest program. Through Breakout Labs, they are reshaping the way early-stage science is funded, so that independent researchers and early-stage companies can advance their most radical ideas. Venture capital firms want research that can be quickly brought to market, and federal funding offers little room for risky, unproven ideas. They are jumping into this funding gap to energize innovative research. Breakout Labs is not a typical foundation grant—they are a revolutionary, revolving funding model where successful projects fund the next generation of audacious scientific exploration. Apache Pig - Platform for Analyzing Large Datasets

<http://pig.apache.org/>

Apache Pig is a platform for analyzing large data sets that consists of a high-level language for expressing data analysis programs, coupled with infrastructure for evaluating these programs. The salient property of Pig programs is that their structure is amenable to substantial parallelization, which in turns enables them to handle very large data sets. At the present time, Pig's infrastructure layer consists of a compiler that produces sequences of Map-Reduce programs, for which large-scale parallel implementations already exist (e.g., the Hadoop subproject). Pig's language layer currently consists of a textual language called Pig Latin, which has the following key properties: a) Ease of programming. It is trivial to achieve parallel execution of simple, "embarrassingly parallel" data analysis tasks. Complex tasks comprised of multiple interrelated data transformations are explicitly encoded as data flow sequences, making them easy to write, understand, and maintain; b) Optimization opportunities. The way in which tasks are encoded permits the system to optimize their execution automatically, allowing the user to focus on semantics rather than efficiency; and c) Extensibility. Users can create their own functions to do special-purpose processing. This has been added to Data mining Resources Subject Tracer™.

Sharperlight - Simplified Intelligence

Natural Resources and Environmental Issues (NREI)

<http://digitalcommons.usu.edu/nrei/>

Natural Resources and Environmental Issues (NREI), first published in 1993, is a monographic series that recognizes its role in educating natural resources leaders who can then provide the guidance needed to increase the production of the earth's renewable resources while sustaining/enhancing the global environment. The journal is published in a series of volumes, each addressing a single topic and often associated with an organized symposium. The scope of Natural Resources and Environmental Issues (NREI) encompasses all subjects related to the terrestrial sciences, aquatic resources, and environmental studies. The monographic subjects often address critical resources in environments where scarcity influences management, quality of life, and the functioning of natural landscapes. They hope that each issue will serve as a model for understanding and addressing issues in wildland, agricultural land, and urban land ecosystems. Natural Resources and Environmental Issues is available free of charge as an Open Access journal on the Internet. Abstracts available online. Articles available in PDF format.

gttext - Ground Truthing Tool for Color Images with Text

<http://code.google.com/p/gttext/>

In the research of algorithms that extract text from color images a set of files with the exact location of the text is needed to avoid inefficient and tedious visual checks of the results. This Ground Truth information saves enormous time and gives accuracy. For this the gttext project helps to create fast and quality Ground Truthed data-sets from color text images. The basic level of work is at a pixel detection, making possible to group regions to form the glyph or even use a direct editing to get the choice. This computer engineering project was the result of a degree requirement and it is offered to the open source community. Under GNU License, this project is open to improvements and to accept developers that may want to give a positive change. Enjoy. Encyclopedia of Life - Global Access to Knowledge About Life on Earth

<http://eol.org/>

Our knowledge of the many life-forms on Earth - of animals, plants, fungi, protists and bacteria - is scattered around the world in books, journals, databases, websites, specimen collections, and in the minds of people everywhere. Imagine what it would mean if this information could be gathered together and made available to everyone – anywhere – at a moment’s notice. This dream is becoming a reality through the Encyclopedia of Life.

swabr - Enterprise Microblogging Services

<http://www.swabr.com/>

swabr is short for "Schwarzes Brett 2.0", which is German and means "Black Board 2.0". We provide enterprise microblogging services for companies and organizations. Back in 2010, we turned our idea into reality and founded the swabr GmbH as a company in Berlin (Germany). An Enterprise Microblog is similar to regular Blogs, but with the difference of posting short messages instead of long texts. All the messages are listed chronological in one timeline and can be sorted by topic with the help of keywords. These messages can be send or received on various ways, like SMS, email, IM or directly on the website. swabr can be understood as a "Facebook for companies" or a "Twitter for companies", because it combines elements from Facebook (restricted network) and as well from Twitter (short messages) merging into one single communication. Corporate communications will be changing tremendous: The new challenge will be to use exponential growing information in a productive way and to keep the communication for every single employee as simple and cheap as possible. The Cisco Annual Security Report shows a giant volume of 220 billion daily sent emails worldwide. swabr helps to keep the focus on your main topics and provides stepping into information overload. New and Improved Features on Census.gov Home Page

<http://www.census.gov/newsroom/releases/archives/miscellaneous/cb12-05.html>

The Census Bureau has launched a newly redesigned home page in the first of many enhancements to Census.gov over the coming year. The new features improve navigation and ease of use, thereby making content more accessible, comprehensible and interesting to the broadest possible audience. Some of the new features reporters will find include: a) A top drop-down menu for quick navigation to key topics; b) An embeddable dashboard in the upper right corner featuring our economic indicators. Reporters can subscribe to receive automatic updates; c) A prominent "Census News" section in the middle of the page; d) A new interactive map showing in-depth business and demographic information for the nation, states and counties; e) A "Stat of the Day" highlighting statistics across all the data collected by the Census Bureau; f) A "mega footer" with links categorized under familiar topics and highly trafficked pages; and g) A feature for users to provide feedback. Those familiar with features and links such as QuickFacts and the 2010 Population Finder will still find them on the new home page. Users have not lost any features in the transition. Topics Covered: * metallurgy * alloys * base metals (include iron, nickel, lead and zinc) * ferrous and non-ferrous metals * noble metals (include tantalum, gold, platinum, silver and rhodium) * precious metals * transition metals * metalloids * semi-metals * metallicity * rare metals * synthetic metals * applications * trade.

ROL - Engage, Enable and Empower Citizens and the Community

<http://www.rol.co.uk/>

How do you get members of your community engaged in consultation and debate? Involving local citizens in local decisions has never been more important, but councils are finding it ever harder to encourage residents to take part in consultation activities. Managing multiple concurrent consultations effectively across the organization is another challenge for consultation and communication managers in local authorities. How can you ensure that you are making the most of the knowledge you gather, and avoid duplicating effort? acknowledge is the first complete consultation management solution that enables your organization to engage effectively with citizens about the subjects they care about, at the time and place that suits them. acknowledge is uniquely designed to help you adopt a consistent corporate approach to engagement, and enables you to manage the whole consultation process – from creating a questionnaire to publishing the results – through a single, easy-to-use web interface. EULalyzer _ Analyze License Agreements for Interesting Words and Phrases

<http://www.javacoolsoftware.com/eulalyzer.html>

Analyze license agreements for interesting words and phrases. Make sense of the nonsensical. Discover if the software you're about to install displays pop-up ads, transmits personally identifiable information, uses unique identifiers to track you, or much much more. EULalyzer can analyze license agreements in seconds, and provide a detailed listing of potentially interesting words and phrases. Benefits include: a) Discover potentially hidden behavior about the software you're going to install; b) Pick up on things you missed when reading license agreements; c) Keep a saved database of the license agreements & documents you view; and d) Instant results - super-fast analysis in just a second. And with additional features like the EULA Research Center, which optionally allows users to anonymously submit license agreements they scan to help us to further improve the program, everyone can be a part of the effort to make something that used to be so tedious, so easy. When installing software, never just click past the license agreement. When joining a new site, don't just write off the privacy policy as too long and verbose to read. Open.NASA

<http://open.nasa.gov/>

Through this website, they will continue, unify, and expand NASA's open source activities. The site will serve to surface existing projects, provide a forum for discussing projects and processes, and guide internal and external groups in open development, release, and contribution. In their initial release, they are focusing on providing a home for the current state of open source at the Agency. This includes guidance on how to engage the open source process, points of contact, and a directory of existing projects. By elucidating the process, they hope to lower the barriers to building open technology in partnership with the public. Phase two will concentrate on providing a robust forum for ongoing discussion of open source concepts, policies, and projects at the Agency. In their third phase, they will turn to the tools and mechanisms development projects generally need to be successful, such as distributed version control, issue tracking, continuous integration, documentation, communication, and planning/management. During this phase, they will create and host a tool, service, and process chain to further lower the burden to going open. Ultimately, their goal is to create a highly visible community hub that will imbue open concepts into the formulation stages of new hardware and software projects, and help existing projects transition to open modes of development and operation. They believe that tomorrow's space and science systems will be built in the open, and that code.nasa.gov will play a big part in getting there. Will your code someday escape our solar system or land on an alien planet? They are working to make it happen, and with your help, it will. This has been added to the tools section of Research

DataMasher - State Data and Mash It

<http://www.datamasher.org/>

The Federal Government produces an immeasurable amount of data each day. DataMasher helps citizens have a little fun with those data by creating mashups to visualize them in different ways and see how states compare on important issues. Users can combine different data sets in interesting ways and create their own custom rankings of the states. Much of the data was pulled from Data.gov, some of it directly from Federal Government sites. In some cases they pull from third parties who draw upon Federal Government or State Data. govpulse - The Federal Register At Your Fingertips

<http://www.govpulse.us/>

To the average US citizen it can often seem that their government works in leaps and bounds, with new legislation or debates on legislation leaping to the fore. Yet every day the thousands of employees of the U.S Government go to work for the people of the country. Each day agencies release hundreds of proposed rules and regulations, meeting notices, final rules, and changes to existing rules in the form of the Federal Register. However in their current format they are difficult to find and to process in meaningful ways. GovPulse was built to address this problem and open the doors of government to the people they work for. By making such documents as the Federal Register searchable, more accessible and easier to digest, GovPulse seeks to encourage every citizen to become more involved in the workings of their government and make their voice heard on the things that matter to them, from the smallest to the largest issues. The Federal Register was created to inform citizens of their rights and obligations, document the actions of Federal agencies, and to provide a forum for public participation in the democratic process. Additionally it provides access to a wide range of Federal benefits and opportunities for funding. They like to think of the Federal Register as the pulse of government. It is our goal to see the hard work of the men and women that make up our government more robustly presented and thus encourage the people of the US to more fully participate. Quixey - Find Apps That Do What You Want

<http://www.quixey.com/>

Quixey invented Functional Search specifically for apps. With Quixey, you do not need to know an app's name or its official description to find the right app. Unlike traditional search engines, Quixey constantly scans blogs, review sites, forums and social media outlets to learn what each app can do and how people use it. Quixey uses this data to help users find the apps they need across all platforms. Since they have a thorough understanding of each app, Functional Search is not dependent on keywords. Quixey envisions a world where millions of apps are instantly accessible across platforms. They recognize the future of apps is not confined to just your computer and smartphone. Rather, apps will continue to enhance functionality for our home appliances, offices and vehicles. Quixey puts all the right apps at your fingertips, regardless of the platform. Just answer the question, "What do you want to do?" This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

ShoppingBots and Online Shopping Resources 2012

<http://www.ShoppingBots.info/>

The latest research shows that when prospects search for your company on the Internet, the top 10 listings are likely to include the following:

- a) 3 listings from consumer posts to blogs, message boards, and opinion sites,
- b) 2 listings from experts,
- c) 2 listings from your own corporate site,

- d) 1 listing from an online publication, and
- e) 2 listings from other sources.

This confirms the need for immediate business intelligence to constantly monitor and evaluate the prospects ongoing searching results for your company, brand, and product. Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A., Executive Director of the Virtual Private Library™, Internet expert, author, speaker, consultant and creator/founder of BotSpot.com will be speaking on The Future of the Internet: eCommerce Security, Cloud Computing, HTML5 and IPV6 with emphasis on the growing areas of bots, intelligent agents, blogs (weblogs), news aggregators, business intelligence, artificial intelligence, RSS, Twitter, FaceBook MashUps, Grids/Clouds, Social Networks and the Web 3.0 . The Internet's future is both theoretical and practical and will relate to all that gather in cyberspace to continue education and to keep current! We truly live in exciting times Will Mash-Ups and the Web 3.0 replace the current Internet as we know it? Kinzaa - Infographic Resumes

<http://www.kinzaa.com/>

Infographics provides the format that sets you apart from the crowd. Employers get the specific information they crave in a single glance and they can quickly form an accurate picture of you in their mind. Infographics help job-seekers such as you stand out. Your skills are clearly described and employers see you in the brightest possible perspective. Their mission is to help people get the job they want and will thrive in. They want to maximize and utilize talent for optimal functioning of the individual and the organization they work in. They know each person has a unique talent that is waiting to be expressed and want to build a system that unlocks that talent for the greater good. They do that by quickly assessing the individual and representing their skills, experience, personality and objectives in an easy to review infographical format. Employers create their ideal profiles and Kinzaa will instantly align the best candidates with the ideal employers. At Kinzaa they are changing the way the world views the job search process. We are using infographics combined with advanced matching tools to dramatically alter the connection between job-seeker and employer. We want every job-seeker to have these powerful tools in their hand. This has been added to Employment Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

MindMixer - Tools to Allow Community Planning to Happen Online

<http://www.mindmixer.com/>

MindMixer acts as a virtual town-hall allowing community planning to happen online. They believe that people want to be active participants in their community's decision-making. Yet, the existing model for civic engagement is rooted in community meetings that still require citizens to physically show up at a specific time and specific place. MindMixer changes that model by providing citizens access to share ideas, solve challenges, and interact with community leaders at any time, from anywhere. Whether it is transportation, schools, taxes, or climate change, the conversation is a mouse click away. MindMixer is unique in that the platform was designed and built by people who have spent their careers working with government entities. They have first-hand experience in the difficulty associated with attracting citizens to traditional meetings and they understand the challenge of prolonged engagement. They believe whole-heartedly that if you provide the right tools and put forth the right topics, citizens will often surprise with their enthusiasm and knowledge. Philosophical Transactions - The World's First Science Journal

<http://rstl.royalsocietypublishing.org/>

In 1662, the newly formed 'Royal Society of London for Improving Natural Knowledge' was granted a charter to publish by King Charles II and on 6 March 1665, the first issue of Philosophical Transactions was published under the visionary editorship of Henry Oldenburg, who was also the Secretary of the Society. The first volumes of what was the world's first scientific journal were very different from today's journal, but in essence it served the same function; namely to inform the Fellows of the Society and other interested readers of the latest scientific discoveries. As such, Philosophical Transactions established the important principles of scientific priority and peer review, which have become the central foundations of scientific journals ever since. In 1886, the breadth and scope of scientific discovery had increased to such an extent that it became necessary to divide the journal into two, Philosophical Transactions A and B, covering the physical sciences and the life sciences respectively.

Deep Web Research 2012

<http://www.llrx.com/features/deepweb2012.htm>

Marcus P. Zillman's extensive research over the years into the "invisible" or "deep" web indicates that it covers somewhere in the vicinity of 1 trillion plus pages of information located throughout the Internet in various files and formats that current search engines either cannot locate, or have difficulty accessing. The current search engines find hundreds of billions of pages at the time of this publication. His guide provides extensive and targeted resources to facilitate both a better understanding of the history of deep web research as well to effectively and productively search for and locate these often undiscovered but critical documents

Understanding Personal Learning Networks: Their Structure, Content and the Networking Skills Needed to Optimally Use Them by Kamakshi Rajagopal, Desirée Joosten-ten Brinke, Jan Van Bruggen, Peter B Sloep

<http://firstmonday.org/htbin/cgiwrap/bin/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/3559>

Abstract:

Networking is a key skill in professional careers, supporting the individual's growth and learning. However, little is known about how professionals intentionally manage the connections in their personal networks and which factors influence their decisions in connecting with others for the purpose of learning. In this article, we present a model of personal professional networking for creating a personal learning network, based on an investigation through a literature study, semi-structured interviews and a survey.
