V10N6

June 2012

Welcome to the V10N6 June 2012 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers Entrepreneurial and Intrapreneurial Resources and Sites on the Internet. In today’s “New Economy” we must be constantly vigilant as to the latest happenings, resources and sources that will be our tools and companions for the “New Economy”. This comprehensive listing of resources and sites for the Entrepreneur and the Intrapreneur will serve as your roadmap and guide to accomplish your goals and to keep you focused with the latest current awareness that will be required to obtain the needed objectives along the path. The URLs that need to be monitored for updates to this report are as follows:

Asana - Task Management for Teams

<http://asana.com/>

Asana is an effort to re-imagine how teams get things done. They are building the modern way to work together, through a web application that connects everyone with what's going on, their shared priorities, and who owns each part of the effort. They are engineering, business and thought leaders from companies such as Facebook and Google. They are backed by Benchmark Capital and Andreessen-Horowitz, and an experienced team of advisors. They all do great things together by aligning everyone's energy towards a common goal, breaking the effort into parts, then marching towards the goal together. But too often, the friction of coordination, of communicating the right amount of information, to the right people, at the right time, in the right place, gets in the way. This friction lowers their collective productivity - which worsens with the complexity of projects they undertake. To take the next step in group productivity, they need a fresh start. They created Asana to help take that step; to improve the productivity of individuals and groups, to increase the potential output of any human effort. ### Documentary-Log.com - Free Documentaries Online

<http://www.documentary-log.com/>

Documentary-Log.com was founded by fans of documentaries. There are thousands (if not millions) of movie and tv sites out there – allowing you to discuss, watch TV. But, do they allow you to think? They thought not. Documentaries were a lost art on the web and they found it very hard to find their favorites. So, a few friends got together and made a website where we could all gather the very best. They put a focus on science documentaries, purely because this seemed to be the most underrepresented section on the web. They also love culture, physics, spiritual, religion, business, and history. They have put a lot of effort into this website and we hope you like it! You'll find that you're able to make comments. You're able to rate the documentaries. ### Scout - Get Alerts When Congress or Your State Capitol Talks About Issues You Care About

<http://scout.sunlightfoundation.com/>

Scout is a free service that provides daily insight to how our laws and regulations are shaped in Washington, DC and our state capitols. These days, you can receive electronic alerts to know when a company is in the news, when a TV show is scheduled to air or when a sports team wins. Now, you can also be alerted when our elected officials take action on an issue you care about. Scout allows anyone to subscribe to customized email or text alerts on what Congress is doing around an issue or a specific bill, as well as bills in the state legislature and federal regulations. Researchers can use Scout to see when Congress talks about an issue over time. Members of the media can use Scout to track when legislation important to their beat moves ahead in Congress or in state houses. Non-profits can use Scout as a tool to keep tabs on how federal and state lawmakers are making policy around a specific issue. Scout was developed by Sunlight Labs and data comes from a variety of sources. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. ### Stay Invisible - An Internet Anonymity Test

<http://www.stayinvisible.com/>

Online privacy test to analyze what does your browser reveal to websites, in addition to your IP address. Allows to check your default Internet connection and connections protected with "hide my IP" services like proxy or VPN - often with shocking results. Modern web browsers provide a user with a lot of features but they have also been designed to reveal your IP address and tons of other "innocent looking" information to websites. A collection of such information can be used to compile browser fingerprints that according to the EFF study are unique, identifiable and can be easily used for online tracking. ## SourceMap - Where Things Come From

<http://www.sourcemap.com>

Sourcemap.com is the open directory of supply chains and environmental footprints. Consumers use the site to learn about where products come from, what they're made of, and how they impact people and the environment. Companies use Sourcemap to communicate transparently with consumers and tell the story of how products are made. Thousands of maps have already been created for food, furniture, clothing, electronics and more. Behind the public-facing website is a revolutionary social network-based approach to supply chain management. Sourcemap works with organizations to increase visibility into their supply chains through a new generation of web-based software for traceability, monitoring and risk management. The lightweight, real-time social networking platform makes it possible to gather information from all of the stakeholders in a global supply chain so that – one day soon – you'll be able to scan a product on a store shelf and know exactly who made it. ### Global Dialogue

<http://worlddialogue.org/gd.php>

The Centre for World Dialogue is an international non-governmental organisation that exists to promote greater understanding between the peoples of the world. It was established in 1995 and is fully independent, with no affiliation to any government or political body. The Centre for World Dialogue is founded on the conviction that all people have the right to engage in the free and open discussion of ideas. The Centre believes that dialogue and the exchange of views have a vital role to play in the prevention and resolution of conflicts. These basic principles underpin the Centre's commitment to promoting greater understanding and co-operation at all levels through initiating and encouraging discussion on issues of global concern. Global Dialogue is the electronic journal of the Centre for World Dialogue, published online twice a year. Its clear, thought-provoking articles offer analysis and insight on questions of international concern. Global Dialogue is dedicated to promoting the exchange of ideas on a broad range of pressing contemporary issues, social, political, economic and cultural. As its name suggests, Global Dialogue aims to encourage debate. The journal reflects the belief that engagement and discussion are better means of resolving conflict than the threat or use of force. Each issue is themed, providing in-depth coverage of a specific topic.

Excel Recovery

<http://sourceforge.net/projects/corruptexcelrec/>

Microsoft recommends several methods for recovering Excel data from corrupt spreadsheets. Excel Recovery makes it easy to follow these recommendations for saving and reopening your file in the SYLK and HTML formats, opening the corrupt workbook with calculations to manual or in safe mode, opening in the Excel Viewer or WordPad, opening the file in open and repair or open and extract data modes, and using the external references method. The application adds two methods of its own for data extraction and one for Excel repair (really just zip repair of underlying zip structure of xlsx file or renaming xls file to xlsx if wrong extension was used) using included command line apps. Finally it has its own native previous file version recovery tool which works where in any version of Vista and Windows 7. Still to be added in a future version is the macro chart data recovery method. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

HUWY - Supports Young People To Influence Policies Related to the Internet

<http://huwy.eu/>

HUWY (Hub Websites for Youth Participation) was an eParticipation Preparatory Action project, which piloted a distributed (networked) discussion. The pilot ran in Estonia, Germany, Ireland and the UK. HUWY aimed to find good ways to support groups of young people to discuss what changes are needed to the Internet and its regulation and, further, to encourage policy-makers to interact with young people's ideas. Young people in each country chose topics (e.g. Cyberbullying, Privacy) to focus the project, also specifying an "open thread" about their experiences, relevant to the Internet. The eParticipation innovation of the HUWY project is a new method to bring people into policy-making: distributed discussion. A family of "hub websites" support a networked discussion. Hubs contain information about the project, well-structured background materials about chosen topics, the results of young people's discussions and feedback from policy-makers. There is one hub website for each of the pilot countries, with localised information and language. This is the central node for that country. Young people hold discussions on their own websites (organisational or social) or in offline settings. These discussions post their results on their country's hub. The four country hubs are linked by an EU hub huwy.eu and is a global entry point for the project and the place to summarise results for EU policy-makers. The Office of the Federal Register (OFR) of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), and the U.S. Government Printing Office (GPO) jointly administer the FederalRegister.gov website. The OFR/GPO partnership is developing an unofficial XML-based edition of the daily Federal Register on this site. In this edition, Federal Register documents are organized and displayed in an easier to read format; we have also added various web tools and user aids designed to help people find material relevant to their interests. We built this XML edition of the Federal Register to make it easier for citizens and communities to understand the regulatory process and to participate in Government decision-making. You can now find the Federal Register electronic public inspection desk at www.OFR.gov. ## Journal of Digital Humanities

<http://journalofdigitalhumanities.org/>

The Journal of Digital Humanities is a comprehensive, peer-reviewed, open access journal that features the best scholarship, tools, and conversations produced by the digital humanities community in the previous quarter. The Journal of Digital Humanities offers expanded coverage of the digital humanities in three ways. First, by publishing scholarly work beyond the traditional research article. Second, by selecting content from open and public discussions in the field. Third, by encouraging continued discussion through peer-to-peer review.

Frrole - Twitter Based Social Newspaper

<http://frrole.com/>

Frrole is a social newspaper built on top of Twitter. It currently covers 50+ cities and 5 countries. Using 10+ million tweets from and about these cities, Frrole creates a 'by the people, about the people' newspaper for each city, country and the whole world. Inside its infrastructure, Frrole analyzes Twitter data city by city, filtering out 'noise' and pulling out 'information'. These informative tweets are then clubbed into different categories like Events, Sports, Deals etc. (just like a newspaper) and presented to the consumer. Frrole thus gives the consumer a brand new way of discovering his city and his world and finding out what it is up to! Information availability and discovery today has a few gaps: a) The amount of information available online through social media sources is increasing at a pace faster than it is being processed. Most of the popular social media tools today involuntarily contribute to increasing information instead of reducing it; b) Collective knowledge of the crowd is more than the knowledge of any professional group, but it is equally tough to make sense of the crowd's knowledge; and c) Currently, people discover about their surroundings through sources put together by professional teams - locally targeted websites, online news sources etc. Additionally, they do so by following friends, popular local people etc over the social web. However, the information you get in these cases is only as good as the sources you manage to subscribe to. Frrole fills this gap of constrained and/or undiscoverable sources by democratizing the information sources. It does not matter anymore whether the information comes from the biggest media corporation or from the person next door. If people around find the information relevant, it automatically bubbles up to the top, in real-time, irrespective of where it came from. Everybody is a journalist in Frrole. ### Audiobook Cutter - Slice Your Audiobooks

<http://audiobookcutter.com/>

Split your MP3 audio books and podcasts in a fast and user friendly way. The split files can easily be used on mobile MP3 players because of their small-size. It allows smooth navigation through the book and let you continue from where you stopped listening. The split points are determined automatically based on silence detection. Because of this feature, long audiobook recordings can be cut into manageable albums with just a few clicks. This software is applicable for all kind of spoken MP3 content. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Sehrch - Structured Search Search Engine

<http://s.earch.me/>

This is a new type of search engine, this is structured search. Traditional search engines are document engines. Web documents can be pages, images or videos. These are informative to humans but conceptually flat to machines. Documents do not describe entities in a manner understandable by machines. This makes traditional search engines conceptually unaware. They gather semantic web objects instead of documents. These objects are conceptualizations of real world entities. An object can be any real Thing, for example a Person, City or Event. Objects have properties, such as a Person has a name and date of birth, whereas an institution has a date of establishment. Objects can relate to each other, for example one Person may be the parent of another Person. They gather our conceptual awareness by harmonizing objects within the semantic web. They organically harvest properties from the semantic web. There is no limit upon the number of properties they can store for a given object. This allows them to provide structured search. Structured search moves beyond keywords. Relevant documents are found by forming search patterns based upon object properties. They believe algorithmically sprouting such patterns will yield disambiguated and better focused results. Object search matches against conceptual entities from where search patterns can be derived that will yield better document results. This makes interaction with document search abstract. Object searches are not appropriate for all queries, for instance those where there is no prevalent conceptual being. For such queries they default to performing a direct document search, while presenting secondary object suggestions. Users can always override an object search with a document search at their discretion. Their goal is to derive a more meaningful search experience by intertwining object and document search. This will be added to Academic and Scholar Search Engines and Sources White Paper.

Journal of Philosophy of Life

Off-the-Record (OTR) Messaging

<http://www.cypherpunks.ca/otr/>

Off-the-Record (OTR) Messaging allows you to have private conversations over instant messaging by providing: a) Encryption - No one else can read your instant messages; b) Authentication - You are assured the correspondent is who you think it is; c) Deniability - The messages you send do not have digital signatures that are checkable by a third party. Anyone can forge messages after a conversation to make them look like they came from you. However, during a conversation, your correspondent is assured the messages he sees are authentic and unmodified; and d) Perfect Forward Secrecy - If you lose control of your private keys, no previous conversation is compromised. ### Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Digital Inclusion and Data Profiling by Seeta Peña Gangadharan

<http://firstmonday.org/htbin/cgiwrap/bin/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/3821>

Abstract:

In the United States, digital inclusion policies designed to introduce poor people, communities of color, indigenous, and migrants (collectively, “chronically underserved communities” or “the underserved”) to the economic, social, and political benefits of broadband lie in tension with new practices and techniques of online surveillance. While online surveillance activity affects all broadband users, members of chronically underserved communities are potentially more vulnerable to the harmful effects of surveillant technologies. This paper examines specific examples of commercial data profiling against a longer history of low-tech data profiling of chronically underserved communities. It concludes by calling for issues of online privacy and surveillance to punctuate digital inclusion discourse. Until this happens, digital inclusion policies threaten to bring chronically underserved communities into online worlds that, as Gandy (2009) argued, reinforce and exacerbate social exclusion and inequalities.
