V11N12

December 2013

Welcome to the V11N12 December 2013 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

Awareness Watch™ Spotters

Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review

Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers Privacy Resources and Alerts 2014. In today’s New Economy we must constantly be diligent in observing the latest privacy resources as well as the appropriate alerts to keep us current in all the various facets of our life including business, academic and special interests. The below list of sources is taken from my Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs titled Privacy Resources and Internet Alerts and are constantly updated with Subject Tracer™ Information Bots (STIB) at the following URLs:

<http://www.PrivacyResources.info/>

<http://www.InternetAlerts.info/>

These resources and sources will help you to discover the many existing and new pathways available to you through the Internet to find the latest privacy and alert resources, sources and sites. In today’s New Economy it has become one of the most important areas that we must constantly monitor and implement!

Tame - Time To Tame the Social Web

<http://tame.it/>

Twitter is the most important news source on the web. But a lot of its potential is eclipsed by the noise of its irrelevant and redundant tweet glut. Tame cuts through the noise and makes sense of your Twitter streams — your timeline, your lists, or just general searches. With Tame, drowning in random content will be a thing of the past. And so will be missing out on relevant information. Our algorithm always points you towards what really matters and downs the redundancy. Just check in on Tame whenever you feel like it and get your individual rankings of the most relevant links, topics and accounts. When you log in, Tame analyzes the last 24 hours or up to 7 days of your timeline and crunches it down to a top 10 overview of the most relevant hashtags, users and links. Then you can use Tame like a search engine—and get the most relevant topics, people and content. All you need to do is sign in with Twitter and off you go. ## The Confidential Resource - Sources and Methods for the Investigator

<http://www.confidentialresource.com/>

The Confidential Resource offers sources and methods for Investigators and Researchers. The word research derives from Middle French; its literal meaning is 'to investigate thoroughly' (from Wikipedia) and the most familiar image of the Investigator is Sherlock Holmes with his deerstalker hat and magnifying glass. Unfortunately, this is a very narrow-minded representation of the Investigator. The investigative process does not belong solely to the police or private detective. Investigation is at the heart of every human activity. Scholars investigate. Antique dealers and appraisers investigate. Investors investigate. Medical Doctors investigate. In one way or another, we all investigate something or other. It is the application of information collection skills, logic, and analytical skills. To investigate, is to seek a solution. The Confidential Resource is a modern analog for a Commonplace Book with the theme of Sources & Methods for the Investigator. A Commonplace Book is a written scrapbook filled with things one learns, but doesn't want to forget. The name, commonplace, is a translation of the Latin term, locus communis, which means argument or theme for general application. This Blog is edited by Richard McEachin of McEachin & Associates Ltd. and the first article appeared on 31 July 2007. ## Blippex Search Engine By the People and For the People

<https://www.blippex.org/>

Blippex Search Engine with the following features: a) Blippex is a search engine by the people, for the people. Individuals that have our browser extension installed tell us how long they stayed on a webpage; b) With that data we build our search engine and rank the search results based on the time people spend on a webpage. We assume that the longer they spend on a page the more important it is; c) You are in full control and can even influence the search algorithm on the web page, and d) lippex was built with your privacy in mind. ## You Don't Need a CRM

<http://youdontneedacrm.com/>

You Don't Need a CRM! is a simple and efficient tool built for your sales force. Using it is a relief, not a headache. Standard CRM software slows down your sales by wasting time filling in 'paperwork', diverting you from your primary goal : acquiring new customers! You have to go through the process of creating a sales log including company name, contact details, and to do steps, and finally add your lead... The solution is: It's all about leads. Copy & paste information from a spreadsheet or upload a business card! That's it! You have a lead, you can start working. You Don't Need a CRM! keeps you in touch with your prospects at the key moments of the customer relation process, taking away the risk of missing an important opportunity! ### Send Files Securely

<https://www.sendfilessecurely.com/>

Email is insecure, despite what many may lead you to think. You should not send confidential information in emails. This includes attachments. See Wikipedia's entry on E-mail privacy for additional information. Send File Securely was created to solve the problem of insecure email. By using the latest cryptographic and secure programming standards, Send Files Securely provides a secure way to transfer files online without the need to install or configure any software. You simply upload your files and let it take care of the rest. This will be added to Privacy Resources Subject Tracer™. ### Boomerang - Schedule eMail To Be Sent Later and Easy eMail Reminders

<http://www.boomeranggmail.com/>

Features include: a) Send an email later - With Boomerang, you can write an email now and schedule it to be sent automatically at the perfect time. Just write the message as you normally would, then click the Send Later button. Use our handy calendar picker or our text box that understands language like "next Monday" to tell Boomerang when to send your message. We'll take it from there; b) The best follow up reminders - Want a cleaner inbox, but don't want to lose track of important messages? Use Boomerang to take messages out of your inbox until you actually need them. Just click the Boomerang button when you have an email open, and choose when you need it again. Boomerang will archive the message. At the time you chose, we'll bring it back to your inbox, marked unread, starred, or even at the top of your message list; and c) Remind you if you don't hear back - There are times you need to make sure you follow up within a specific time frame after sending a message. You can select to only be reminded if nobody replies, or regardless. This way you won't let messages slip through the crack and will never forget to follow up with people. Boomerang can help you: 1) Remember to pay bills; 2) Schedule birthday/holiday notes when you have time to write them; 3) Make sure you follow up with a sales lead; 4) Communicate with people in different time zones; 5) Clear out travel confirmation emails, returning them on the day of your trip; and 6) And lots

Increased cross-collaboration among state, local, tribal (SLT), and federal justice entities to share personally identifiable information (PII) forms the information and records that underlie justice decision making. With this increased sharing, it is also imperative that justice entities address the quality of this information. Failure to do so can result in harm to individuals, lawsuits and liability, public criticism, inefficient use of resources, spread of inaccurate information, or inconsistent actions within agencies. Further, the collection and sharing of poor quality information raises serious privacy concerns, because the two concepts are inherently linked. Quality information plays an extremely important role in the protection of the privacy rights of individuals. To assist justice agencies in their reliance on quality information, DOJ's Global has published an information quality (IQ) series that provides practical guidance on how to develop and implement an agencywide information quality program. Using a progressive "step" approach, this series provides agencies with resources from beginning to end—from raising awareness of IQ to the evaluation of the agency's information, ending with the implementation of an agencywide IQ program. ## Mummify - Make a Permanent Copy of Anything Online for Free

<http://mummify.it/>

A Mummy is a permanent copy, or cache, of anything online. When you Mummify something, they provide you with a permanent link that will work forever, even if the original page gets taken off the internet or moved. Mummies can be created and managed in your dashboard. Mummify will not work for any private content that you must be logged in to view. Examples include Facebook messages, a private facebook profile, email, Twitter direct messages, online bank accounts or stock portfolios. Right now they cannot Mummify flash content, video, sounds or PDF content. If you Mummified a video page on Youtube or Vimeo, only the comments and other information on the page would be saved, not the video itself. Mummify is free up to 100 mummies a month. If you need to Mummify more than 100 pages in a given month you can purchase 50 more for $5. This will be added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. ## Lunaspape Orion - World's First Triple Engine Web Browser

<http://www.lunaspape.tv/>

Lunaspape is a free web browser that has been downloaded a total of more than 20 million times by users in 196 different countries. This cutting-edge, highly customizable web browser is designed to achieve the optimal browsing experience both at work and at home. Lunaspape comes with over a hundred built-in functions necessary for any modern browser to take full advantage of the web environment of today, saving you the hassle of installing extensions by hand. Since there is no need to install a lot of add-ons, you can browse comfortably and safely without worrying about speed issues or security risks. Since Lunaspape 6.2, looking up a word or sentence on the internet is a lightning fast operation with the Highlighted Search feature. Simply highlight a phrase on the page with the mouse and select an item in the popup menu. The default search options available in this menu include everything from translation to news, but you are free to add any additional items you like. With Lunaspape, the three most popular rendering engines (Trident, Gecko, WebKit) have been integrated in a single browser. By clicking the smart engine-switch button next to the address bar, it is very simple to switch rendering engine for any page, until you find the engine most suitable for displaying the page contents.

Sites designed exclusively for Trident (e.g., bank sites) can be registered in the Auto-Engine-Switch list, so that even if the default engine is Gecko, opening the Trident page automatically switches the rendering engine for that tab to Trident. Built on independently developed technology, Lunascape6 is faster than other browsers that use the Gecko engine, in terms of both startup speed and javascript execution. They have moreover tuned it so as to ensure a shorter startup time than other browsers even with many Gecko add-ons installed. ### TOR2Web - Onion.to Tor Hidden Services Gateway

<https://www.onion.to/>

This gateway to Tor hidden services provides convenient access to Tor hidden services. It is a pure proxy that forwards requests to the respective hidden service. We do not store any data and are not liable for the content. No anonymity! Onion.to as a gateway cannot offer any anonymity for the visitor. For example, both onion.to and the hidden service itself can see the visitor's IP address, and use browser fingerprinting to track users across different sessions. In all cases, it is better to download the Tor Browser Bundle and access the hidden service using Tor (don't forget to remove the .to from the URL!). This will be added to Privacy Resources Subject Tracer™.

The Disease Map

<http://disease-map.net/>

The introduced disease maps visualise how human disorders are 'positioned' against each other in a population with respect to an individual biological organism. It is well known that many human disorders are risk factors for or consequences of other disorders. While many of such positive associations between disorders are well known and understood, many remain either entirely unnoticed or not properly recognised. Moreover, it is reasonable to assume that certain human disorders can be associated negatively, that is, a person being affected with A, has decreased chances to get affected with B (can be, but not necessary, vice versa). The presented visualisation is a novel tool for validating already known as well as discovering new, never noticed, empirical association patterns between human disorders. While some of such patterns can reflect specifics of a healthcare system, many can reveal interesting biological phenomena relevant practically. Each circle on the map represents a single human disorder as classified according to ICD9-CM (International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision, Clinical Modification). A circle size reflects (3-year) empirical prevalence of a disease in a given age/gender group, while a colour corresponds to one of 17 specific ICD9-CM categories of diseases (Figure 1). Knowing observed strengths of associations between each pair of disorders, we define expected distances between each circle – the stronger the association the shorter the distance. Further, each circle is positioned according to multiple connections to others such that to minimise the cumulative deviation in expected distances. Thus, a position of each circle is determined by multiple connections to other circles. As a result, the entire system takes a certain shape determined by strengths of pairwise associations. ### FindZebra - Search Engine for Difficult Medical Cases

<http://findzebra.compute.dtu.dk/>

The term "zebra" is a medical slang for a surprising diagnosis. Physicians are taught since medical school to concentrate on the more common diseases: "when you hear a gallop, you should think about a horse, not a zebra". FindZebra is designed to help in those cases when the equine turns out to be a zebra. There are close to 7,000 rare diseases recognized by rare disease organizations. We index over 31,000 documents covering rare and genetic diseases from 10 reputable sources. Given the number of rare diseases and rate of publication, we think FindZebra is a good companion for medical professionals. FindZebra is fast, intuitive, and simple to use, with an interaction modeled on familiar web search engines. They strive to accommodate the busy medical professionals through the optional clustering of search results by medical condition and the availability of a mobile version accessible on phones and tablets. This is a research project to be used only by medical professionals. This will be added to Healthcare Resources Subject Tracer™.

pages, and really anything else. Zotero automatically indexes the full-text content of your library, enabling you to find exactly what you're looking for with just a few keystrokes. Zotero organizes your research into collections that act like iTunes playlists. Research items can be added to any number of named collections and subcollections, which in turn can be organized however you like. With saved searches, you can create smart collections that automatically fill with relevant materials as you add them to your library. Assign tags to your library items to organize your research using your own keywords. The tag selector enables you to filter your library instantly to view matching items. Zotero can even use database and library data to tag items automatically as you add them. Whether you need to create footnotes, endnotes, in-text citations, or bibliographies, Zotero will do all the dirty work for you, leaving you free to focus on your writing. Create citations in Word and OpenOffice without ever leaving your word processor and add references to an email, a Google Doc, or some other editor simply by dragging one or more references out of Zotero. Ready to submit your manuscript to Tropical Doctor or French Historical Studies? We've got you covered: with native integration of the powerful and flexible Citation Style Language (CSL), Zotero supports thousands of publication formats with more styles added daily. Zotero automatically synchronizes your data across as many devices as you choose. Add to your research library on your work PC, and organize your collections on your home laptop. All of your notes, files, and bibliographic data remain seamlessly and silently up to date. Returning from field work? Your data will be waiting for you when you get home. Upgrading to a new computer? Zotero will automatically pull down a complete copy of your research library from our server network. Even if you don't yet have Zotero installed, you can always access your research from any web browser in the world. Create and join research groups to focus on any topic you choose. Each group can share its own research library, complete with files, bibliographic data, notes, and discussion threads. Tag and analyze your research together with others. Work with a single colleague or an entire class: Zotero groups can include as many members as you please. Zotero groups can be private or public, open or closed. You decide. For example, you and a few colleagues might initially work on a research project in private. After publication, why not share your research notes and library with the world? ### uProxy - Share Your Pathway To the Internet uProxy is a browser extension that lets users share alternative more secure routes to the Internet. It's like a personalised VPN service that you set up for yourself and your friends. uProxy helps users protect each other from third parties who may try to watch, block, or redirect users' Internet connections. You might not realise it, but every time you connect to a website, your information takes many steps. For example it may travel from your computer to a Wi-Fi hotspot, to an Internet service provider, then on to an international gateway before arriving at the site. This journey matters because it is at each step that the connection may be blocked, surveilled or misdirected. uProxy lets you provide a pathway for trusted friends to get safer, more private and more reliable access. You give access to a friend by email or chat. By accessing the Internet through uProxy, a friend's Internet connection is routed through your computer before continuing to the site they are visiting. uProxy helps avoid attacks on your friend's Internet connection. You can also use uProxy when you are travelling and worried about the security of your Internet connection. By using uProxy to route your connection back to your home computer, you can access the Internet as if you were in your own home. uProxy has been developed at the University of Washington, with help from Brave New Software. <http://www.diedinhouse.com/>

<http://uproxy.org/>

Using a valid U.S. address, Died in House™ instantly searches millions of records to determine if a death has occurred at that location. A Died in House™ report may return the following information: a) Has a death occurred?; b) Who died at that house?; c) When did the person die?; d) What was the cause of death?; e) List of Previous Residents; f) Vitality Status of Previous Residents; and g) Additional information about the death. DiedinHouse.com was founded in 2013 by a software development company based in Chapin, SC. The Died in House™ service is the first of its kind; it provides users with death records associated to a specific address. The system instantly searches over 118 million records and that number continues to grow daily. The company is not only focusing on increasing the amount of data, but also increasing the age of their data. The Died in House™ system contains data for all 50 states. They are in the process of making the Died in House™ service available in other countries. This has been added to the tools

Increased cross-collaboration among state, local, tribal (SLT), and federal justice entities to share personally identifiable information (PII) forms the information and records that underlie justice decision making. With this increased sharing, it is also imperative that justice entities address the quality of this information. Failure to do so can result in harm to individuals, lawsuits and liability, public criticism, inefficient use of resources, spread of inaccurate information, or inconsistent actions within agencies. Further, the collection and sharing of poor quality information raises serious privacy concerns, because the two concepts are inherently linked. Quality information plays an extremely important role in the protection of the privacy rights of individuals. This will be added to Information Quality Resources Subject Tracer™.

Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

3D Printing Community and Emerging Practices of Peer Production by Jarkko Moilanen, Tere Vadén.

<http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/4271>

Abstract:

Based on the results of a 2012 survey on people doing 3D printing, we present results on the demographics and self-identification of the community, as well as describing participants' printing activity. Combining results from the survey with insights from research literature, we analyse emerging patterns and practices of 3D printing as a subdivision of a more general trend of physical peer production, and, even, of a revolution in manufacturing, as predicted by several theorists.
