V12N11

November 2014

Welcome to the V12N11 November 2014 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and is issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

Awareness Watch™ Spotters

Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review

Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers ShoppingBots and Online Shopping Resources 2015 and is a comprehensive listing of shoppingbot, online shopping, coupon, discount codes and deal resources and sites on the Internet. This is the 19th annual listing of this directory that has been produced and published by Internet Expert and Guru Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A. since 1996. These resources have dynamically improved over the last 19 years and now offer you a method to find and enjoy all the latest resources for virtual shopping on the Internet. It covers both the shoppingbots (search engines for shopping) and coupon/discount code/deal sites so you may “Shop with Your Bot Until You Drop”. The site is always updated and is available at the following URL:

Notes and Suggestions for Virtual Shopping

Whether your gift list is ready or you're wondering how long you can wait to start your holiday shopping, the Federal Trade Commission has online tips to help you get the best deals. The bottom line: Some extra research can really pay off:

Set a Budget. Create a gift list and check it twice to help you stay on track and not overspend.

Decide What Matters. Especially if you're buying gadgets, know what your "must-have" features are vs. those that are just nice to have.

Use Search Engines. Type a company or product name into your search engine with terms like "review," "complaint" or "scam" to find out more about it.

Read Reviews Online. Reviews from other people, experts, and columnists can give you an idea of how a product performs. But don't put all of your trust in one review.

Consider Reputation. A brand's reputation for quality and good customer service can really pay off.

Check Comparison Shopping Sites. They connect to many retailers selling the same product, sometimes at significantly different prices. Keep shipping costs in mind.

Consider Coupons. Some companies offer discounts via e-mail, and some websites collect and list codes for free shipping and other discounts. Search for the store with terms like "discount," "coupon" or "free shipping."

Read Return Policies. Not all stores have the same rules. Some charge fees for return shipping or restocking things like electronics.

Decide How to Pay. When you shop online, credit cards can offer extra protections.

Look for a Secure Checkout. Does the website start with https (the "s" stands for secure) when you're checking out?

How To Start a Startup - CS183B Class at Stanford

<http://startupclass.samaltman.com/>

Everything we know about how to start a startup, for free, from some of the world experts. CS183B is a class that Sam Altman, President Y Combinator is teaching at Stanford. It's designed to be a sort of one-class business course for people who want to start startups. Videos of the lectures, associated reading materials, and assignments will all be available here. There will be 20 videos, some with a speaker or two and some with a small panel. It'll be 1,000 minutes of content if you watch it all. They will cover how to come up with ideas and evaluate them, how to get users and grow, how to do sales and marketing, how to hire, how to raise money, company culture, operations and management, business strategy, and more. You can't teach everything necessary to succeed in starting a company, but I suspect we can teach a surprising amount. They have tried to take some of the best speakers from the past 9 years of Y Combinator dinners and arrange them in a way that will hopefully make sense. They are doing this because they believe helping a lot of people will be better at starting companies and will be good for everyone. It will hopefully be valuable even for people who don't want to start startups. All lecture videos will be uploaded to this site - after the in-person lectures every Tuesday and Thursday. DataRobot - Build Better Predictive Models - Faster

<http://www.datarobot.com/>

Building an accurate predictive model could mean combing through a near infinite combination of data transformations, features, algorithms and tuning parameters. DataRobot narrows down the search universe based on the characteristics of the training dataset and prediction target. It then executes only the most relevant end-to-end procedures for fitting a model (called Modeling Blueprints), to deliver the best predictive model in the fastest time possible. DataRobot uses cloud computing to cost-effectively evaluate thousands of Modeling Blueprints in parallel. It then systematically applies a cross-validation framework to accurately compare the performance of even the most diverse modeling techniques. Digital Ecologies Research Partnership (DERP)

<http://derp.institute/>

DERP is an alliance of platforms supporting the academic exploration of communities online for the betterment of the internet at large. Launched in 2014, the Digital Ecologies Research Partnership (DERP) is a joint initiative by an alliance of community websites to promote open, publicly accessible, and ethical academic inquiry into the vibrant social dynamics of the web. DERP seeks to solve two problems in the academic research space: a) it is difficult for academic researchers to easily obtain data for their work beyond the confines of the largest social media platforms. DERP is a single point of contact for researchers to get in touch with relevant team members across a range of different community sites. We envision that this will lower the friction to investigating these sites in more depth, and broaden the scope of research happening within the academic community; and b) it remains difficult to conduct good cross-platform analyses in academic research. By bringing a number community of sites together under a single cooperative effort, we intend to lower the friction of doing so, as well as better enable the sites themselves to coordinate with one another on supporting researchers. DERP focuses on providing public data to academic researchers while facilitating an active online research community of Fellows. DERP will only support research that respects user privacy, responsibly uses data, and meets IRB approval. All research supported by DERP will be released openly and made publicly available. Partner platforms may also have additional guidelines and privacy commitments that apply to the research they support. Ask Any Question - Receive a Short, To-The-Point Answer Snippet

<http://www.quickanswers.io/>

QuickAnswers.io, a natural language question-answering engine. It is capable of answering arbitrary knowledge queries made in natural language, such as "How many plays did Shakespeare write?", "How old is Elon Musk?", etc. They recently completed a total rewrite of QuickAnswers.io, based on a new algorithm. They call it "shallow QA", as opposed to IBM Watson's "deep QA". IBM Watson keeps a large knowledge model available for queries and thus requires a supercomputer to run. At the other end of the spectrum, QuickAnswers.io generates partial knowledge models on the fly and can run on a micro-instance. QuickAnswers.io is a semantic question answering engine, capable of providing quick answer snippets to any question that can be answered. The current code running at QuickAnswers.io only implements a rather rough version of the new algorithm, so it has a lot of room to get better. Node-RED - Visual Tool for Wiring the Internet of Things

<http://nodered.org/>

Node-RED is a tool for wiring together hardware devices, APIs and online services in new and interesting ways. Features include: a) Browser-based flow editing - Node-RED provides a browser-based flow editor that makes it easy to wire together flows using the wide range nodes in the palette. Flows can be then deployed to the runtime in a single-click. JavaScript functions can be created within the editor using the rich capabilities of the embedded Eclipse Orion. A built-in library allows you to save useful functions, templates or flows for re-use; b) Built on Node.js - The light-weight runtime is built on Node.js, taking full advantage of its event-driven, non-blocking model. This makes it ideal to run at the edge of the network on low-cost hardware such as the Raspberry Pi as well as in the cloud. With over 60 thousand modules in Node's package repository, it is easy to extend the range of palette nodes to add new capabilities; and c) Social Development - The flows created in Node-RED are stored using JSON which can be easily imported and exported for sharing with others. An online flow library allows you to share your best flows with the world. Current Nodes available: 1) Transform - JS Functions, Mustache Templates; 2) Network - HTTP • TCP, UDP • MQTT; 3) Social - Twitter • Twilio, Email • IRC • XMPP; 4) Hardware - Raspberry Pi, BeagleBone Black; 5) Storage - Filesystem • MongoDB, MySQL • PostgreSQL; 6) Analysis - Sentiment and Statistics. The Thing System

<http://thethingsystem.com/index.html>

Your life and your house went from one computer to an Internet of things. From tablets to lightbulbs, from sensors to media boxes, everybody gets their own Internet. Today, you have to fight your things. They don't talk to each other, the apps don't work, it's a tower of babel. Our solution — the Thing System — is open source. We'll talk to anything, you can hack the system, it has an open API. With the Thing System, you can finally take control of your things. This will be added to Internet of Things Subject Tracer™.

Tools For the Open Source Internet of Things

<http://iot-toolkit.com/>

The Internet of Things today consists of many different sensor networks and protocols, connected to dedicated cloud services, providing access through smartphone and browser apps. It is rare for these separate "silos" to cooperate or interact with each other. The IoT Toolkit is an Open Source project to develop a set of tools for building multi-protocol Internet of Things Gateways and Service gateways that enable horizontal co-operation between multiple different protocols and cloud services. The project consists of the Smart Object API, gateway service, and related tools: a) Smart Object API gateway service reference implementation; b) HTTP-to-CoAP Semantic mapping proxy; c) Gateway-as-a-Service deployment; d) Application framework, embedded software Agents; e) Semantic discovery and linkage, Linked Data compatibility; f) Tools for multiple sensor net clients;

Devicehub - Open Source Internet of Things Backbone

<http://devicehub.net/>

Devicehub.net is the open source backbone for the Internet of things that offers: a) storage of time-based datapoints via a simple HTTP(S) API; b) rapid visualization of time-based series of data and GPS coordinated; and c) control of actuators (lights, motors, HVAC) from a simple web page. Devicehub.net is a service that helps you interconnect the real world with the Internet. In a thousand ways! Devicehub.net provides an Internet of things (or M2M - Machine To Machine) backbone for the Web 3.0. This will be added to Internet of Things Subject Tracer™.

OpenIoT - Open Source Cloud Solution for the Internet of Things

<http://openiot.eu/>

OpenIoT creates an open source middleware for getting information from sensor clouds, without having to worry about what exact sensors are used. OpenIoT explores efficient ways to use and manage cloud environments for IoT “entities” and resources (such as sensors, actuators and smart devices) and offering utility-based (i.e. pay-as-you-go) IoT services. OpenIoT will provide instantiations of cloud-based and utility-based sensing services enabling the concept of “Sensing-as-a-Service”, via an adaptive middleware framework for deploying and providing services in cloud environments. This will be added to Internet of Things Subject Tracer™.

Contiki: The Open Source OS for the Internet of Things

<http://www.contiki-os.org/>

Contiki is an open source operating system for the Internet of Things. Contiki connects tiny low-cost, low-power microcontrollers to the Internet. Contiki provides powerful low-power Internet communication. Contiki supports fully standard IPv6 and IPv4, along with the recent low-power wireless standards: 6lowpan, RPL, CoAP. With Contiki's ContikiMAC and sleepy routers, even wireless routers can be battery-operated. With Contiki, development is easy and fast: Contiki applications are written in standard C, with the Cooja simulator Contiki networks can be emulated before burned into hardware, and Instant Contiki provides an entire development environment in a single download. Contiki runs on a range of low-power wireless devices, many of which can be easily purchased online. Contiki is developed by a world-wide team of developers with contributions from Atmel, Cisco, ETH, Redwire LLC, SAP, Thingsquare, and many others, led by Adam Dunkels of Thingsquare. Contiki is open source software: Contiki can be freely used both in commercial and non-commercial systems and the full source code is available. This will be added to Internet of Things Subject Tracer™.

Unroll.me - eMail Management

<https://unroll.me/>

An inbox you love. For a whole new email experience. One email. Once a day. All your subscriptions. Unroll.me's email management is a game changer. Here's how they do it: 1) Getting rid of the junk - They identify your subscription emails and neatly list them for you. Do you remember signing up for that newsletter? They didn't think so. Chances are, you're drowning in unwanted email subscriptions. They give you the option to unsubscribe from junk emails right off the bat. One click and they're gone. Done; and 2) The Rollup: Organizing the subscriptions you like - Now that your inbox is junk free, easily combine your favorite subscriptions into a beautiful daily digest email called the Rollup. You choose what gets rolled up and when you receive your Rollup. Like to browse email with your morning coffee? You can get all your newsletters and social notifications at 7 a.m. each day. It's up to you. Features include: a) Easy on the eyes - See your favorite newsletters in a new, elegant way. Unroll.me is available on every device; b) Intuitive categories - Unroll.me automatically categorizes your subscriptions in the Rollup, so you can quickly find what you want; c) A folder with their name on it - Want to check a subscription individually? All emails in your Rollup also live directly inside your email client, in a folder called "Unroll.me." They're secure and easy to access. Serendip-o-matic Search Engine - Connects Your Sources to Digital Materials in Libraries, Museums and Archives Around the World

<http://serendipomatic.org/>

Serendip-o-matic connects your sources to digital materials located in libraries, museums, and archives around the world. By first examining your research interests, and then identifying related content in locations such as the Digital Public Library of America (DPLA), Europeana, and Flickr Commons, our serendipity engine helps you discover photographs, documents, maps and other primary sources. Whether you begin with text from an article, a Wikipedia page, or a full Zotero collection, Serendip-o-matic's special algorithm extracts key terms and returns a surprising reflection of your interests. Because the tool is designed mostly for inspiration, search results aren't meant to be exhaustive, but rather suggestive, pointing you to materials you might not have discovered. At the very least, the magical input-output process helps you step back and look at your work from a new perspective. Give it a whirl. Your sources may surprise you. Unlike conventional search tools, this “serendipity engine” takes in your chosen text—such as an article, song lyrics, or a bibliography—then extracts key terms to deliver similar results from the vast online collections of the Digital Public Library of America, Europeana, and Flickr Commons. Because Serendip-o-matic asks sources to speak for themselves, users can step back and discover connections they never knew existed. This will be added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Academic and Scholar Search Engines and Sources white paper.

Open Knowledge

<https://okfn.org/>

They believe open knowledge can empower everyone, enabling people to work together to tackle local and global challenges, understand our world, expose inefficiency and challenge inequality and hold governments and companies to account. Open Knowledge is a worldwide non-profit network of people passionate about openness, using advocacy, technology and training to unlock information and enable people to work with it to create and share knowledge. They want to see enlightened societies around the world, where everyone has access to key information and the ability to use it to understand and shape their lives; where powerful institutions are comprehensible and accountable; and where vital research information that can help tackle challenges such as poverty and climate change is available to all. They envision a world where: a) knowledge creates power for the many, not the few; b) data frees us to make informed choices about how we live, what we buy and who gets our vote; and c) information and insights are accessible – and apparent – to everyone. This is the world that is chosen. They want to see open knowledge being a mainstream concept, and as natural and important to our everyday lives and organizations as green is today. Open Knowledge central features: 1)

International network: We support, encourage and coordinate an international network of individuals passionate about openness and active in making, training and advocating; 2) Opening up information: We advocate and campaign for open release of key information, particularly at national or large scale, and we monitor the level of openness worldwide; 3) Impact through information: We help people learn about openness and gain data skills, and we partner with change-making organisations aligned with our key themes to help them use open data to accelerate their work, creating positive change towards our goals, stories and case studies; 4) Stewardship: a home for projects and communities: helping nurture and support efforts to open up data and see it used for positive change; and 5) Services and consulting: We offer commercial technology services, consultancy and training to help openness reach its full potential. Open Images - Open Media Platform

<http://www.openbeelden.nl/>

Open Images is an open media platform that offers online access to audiovisual archive material to stimulate creative reuse. Footage from audiovisual collections can be downloaded and remixed into new works. Users of Open Images also have the opportunity to add their own material to the platform and thus expand the collection. Open Images also provides an API, making it easy to develop mashups. Access to the material on Open Images is provided under the Creative Commons licensing model. Creative Commons gives authors, artists, scientists and teachers the freedom to approach their copyright in a more flexible manner and make their work available in a way they can choose themselves. The ‘open’ nature of the platform is underscored by the use of open video formats (Ogg Theora), open standards (HTML5, OAI-PMH) and open source software components. Furthermore, all software that is developed within the scope of

SpreadCloud - Your Spreadsheets Connected

<http://spreadcloud.com/>

SpreadCloud is an Excel add-in that connects your spreadsheets with APIs (application programming interfaces) on the cloud. The add-in works with Excel versions 2007 through 2013 and Office 365 (32-bit and 64-bit). Data keys are used by the SpreadCloud data partners to provide you with access to their data. For example, if need access to TagniFi's data through SpreadCloud, you will need a data key from TagniFi. Use the Request Builder to build requests from scratch or start with one of the pre-built templates that are ready to use. All data is saved with your spreadsheet so you can use it offline or share with others. SpreadCloud lets you easily connect your spreadsheets to data on the cloud. social media. The Social Media Research Foundation is a 501(c)(3) tax exempt public charity incorporated in California. Social media is the term for all the ways people connect to people through computation. Mobile devices, social networks, micro-blogging and location sharing are just a few of the ways people engage in computer-mediated collective action. Mapping, measuring and understanding the landscape of social media is our mission. We support tool projects that enable the collection, analysis and visualization of social media data. We host data sets that are relevant to social media research. And we will support graduate students studying and building research related to social media. Today, their primary project is NodeXL, the free and open network overview discovery and exploration add-in for Excel 2007 (and 2010 and 2013) that extends the familiar spreadsheet so that it can collect, analyze and visualize complex social networks. They plan to take on additional projects that improve the variety and quality of data available to the NodeXL social network analysis platform (among others that consume the open GraphML format). Pushback: Expressions of Resistance to the “Evertime” of Constant Online

Connectivity by Stacey L Morrison, Ricardo Gomez.

<http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/4902>

Abstract:

As a result of the widespread connectivity provided by smartphones, laptops, and tablets, technology users can and often are continuously connected to the Internet and its communication services, a phenomenon some start to call “evertime.” However, many users who first embraced constant connectivity are now pushing back, looking for ways to resist being permanently connected and contactable. This pushback behavior is increasingly visible in the popular press, in personal blogs, and in a small number of academic studies. “Pushback” is a growing phenomenon among frequent technology users seeking to regain control, establish boundaries, resist information overload, and establish greater personal life balance. This study examines a growing body of both academic and non-academic literature, and identifies five primary motivations and five primary behaviors related to pushback. Primary pushback motivations include emotional dissatisfaction, external values, taking control, addiction, and privacy. Primary pushback behaviors are behavior adaptation, social agreement, no problem, tech control, and back to the woods. The implications these pushback motivations and behaviors pose to communication technology are discussed.
