V12N12   December 2014

Welcome to the V12N12 December 2014 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter.
This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and is issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that "change" is the only thing that will remain constant!!

This month's featured report covers Healthcare Online Resources 2015 and is a comprehensive listing of healthcare search engines, directories, listservs, sources and sites on the Internet. As more and more of the Internet global population is utilizing the healthcare resources that are available from the Internet, this V12N12 Awareness Watch Newsletter brings you many of these relevant sources for your virtual private library on your desk top, laptop, tablet or smartphone. Now your healthcare information needs are just a click or tap away! The site is always updated and is available at the following

FOSTER Portal - Facilitate Open Science Training For European Research http://www.fosteropenscience.eu/
The FOSTER portal is an e-learning platform that brings together the best training resources for those who need to know more about Open Science, or who need to develop strategies and skills for implementing Open Science practices in their daily workflows. Here you will find a growing collection of training materials to meet the needs of many different users, from early-career researchers, to data managers, librarians, funders, and graduate schools. This has been added to Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

ConnectED Initiative
http://www.whitehouse.gov/issues/education/k-12/connected In June 2013, President Obama announced the ConnectED initiative, designed to enrich K-12 education for every student in America. ConnectED empowers teachers with the best technology and the training to make the most of it, and empowers students through individualized learning and rich, digital content. Preparing America's students with the skills they need to get good jobs and compete with other countries relies increasingly on interactive, personalized learning experiences driven by new technology. Yet fewer than 30% of America's schools have the broadband they need to teach using today's technology. Under ConnectED, however, 99% of American students will have access to next-generation broadband by 2017. That connectivity will help transform the classroom experience for all students, regardless of income. The President also directed the federal government to make better use of existing funds to get Internet connectivity and educational technology into classrooms, and into the hands of teachers trained on its advantages. And he called on businesses, states, districts, schools, and communities to support this vision, which requires no congressional action. Following the 2014 State of the Union address, the President announced major progress on the initiative, highlighting commitments by the FCC and the private sector. EEXCESS - Enhancing Europe's eXchange in Cultural Educational and Scientific reSources http://eexcess.eu/EEXCESS is a research project funded by the European Union's Seventh Framework Programme (FP7/2007-2013) under grant agreement n° 600601. Its vision is to unfold the treasure of cultural, educational and scientific long-tail content for the benefit of all users. EEXCESS stands for: Enhancing Europe's eXchange in Cultural Educational and Scientific reSources. Through personalised and contextualised recommendation technologies we aim to enrich existing content dissemination channels users habitually use (e.g. social media) and content creation techniques users regularly conduct (e.g. writing blog entries). In order to ensure high quality recommendations we emphasize the integration of knowledge from memory organisations as well as the analysis of user behaviour and content consumption patterns. As the latter raises serious privacy protection issues, we will develop methods for retaining users' privacy while offering the full range of personalisation. Key objectives include: a) Enrichment of Content; b) Personalised Recommendation; and c) Privacy Preservation. This will be added to Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. EFF Releases - Protect Yourself From Electronic Spying with "Surveillance Self-Defense https://ssd.eff.org/
The Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) launched its updated "Surveillance Self-Defense" report today, a comprehensive how-to guide to protecting yourself from electronic spying for Internet users all over the world. "Everyone has something to protect, whether its from the government or stalkers or data-miners," said EFF International Director Danny O'Brien. "Surveillance Self-Defense will help you think through your personal risk factors and concerns--is it an authoritarian government you need to worry about, or an ex-spouse, or your employer?--and guide you to appropriate tools and practices based on your specific situation." Surveillance Self-Defense includes briefings on important security issues, tutorials on using specific privacy software like PGP and OTR, and guides for specific categories of users, like human rights activists or journalism students. People who are just beginning to upgrade their communications privacy can choose the "Security Starter Pack." "The Internet and other electronic communications have empowered people all over the globe to speak out and make connections in world-changing ways," said EFF Director for International Freedom of Expression Jillian York. "But this has also opened new opportunities for tracking and exposure. Surveillance Self-Defense will teach you to think critically about your Internet use and make good choices even as the technology changes around you." Surveillance Self-Defense was first launched in 2009, aimed at educating Americans about the law and technology of communications surveillance. The new report expands, revises, and updates the old guide for use across the globe with support from the Ford Foundation. EFF spoke and worked with experts and activists from across the world, from MIT to the Middle East, in developing the guide. The entire Surveillance Self-Defense project is available in English, Spanish, and Arabic, with more languages available soon. This will be added to Privacy Resources Subject Tracer™. Asteroid Zoo - Hunt for Resource-Rich Asteroids http://www.asteroidzoo.org/Scientists are scanning our solar system for asteroids with the Catalina Sky Survey. They need your help to find asteroids for the exploration of their mineral properties! The study of the asteroids helps us understand how planets and the basis for life form and evolve. Since no significant geological processes have taken place on these small bodies, the asteroids preserve a history of the Solar System in a way that the planets do not. These minor bodies contain relics of the conditions of the early Solar System. In 1994, Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 slammed into Jupiter, leaving scars larger than the earth on the giant planet. We have evidence of other impacts on our planet, even within the last 100 years. As the events of February 15th, 2013 show in videos and photos from Chelyabinsk, Russia, occasionally one of the asteroids will impact our planet. Improving the detection efficiency of existing surveys is an excellent way to increase the number of asteroid detections. Asteroids may represent a resource that will bring the Solar System within humanity's economic sphere of influence. These resources may be the key to unlocking human expansion from Earth into the Solar System, providing propellant for transportation, oxygen for breathing, water for hydration, shielding from solar radiation, and supporting other aspects of life and industry. In addition to these lifelines, asteroids provide the raw material for manufacturing in space, from iron, nickel and cobalt present in staggering quantities, to an abundant supply of the extremely useful and valuable platinum group metals. Just as resources have opened up the frontiers of Earth, they will again do so for the frontiers of space. There are asteroids out there, right now! Today, there are 644,632 known asteroids in the Solar System. This will be added to Astronomy Resources Subject Tracer™.

Unlock Your Brain - Learning On the Lockscreen http://www.unlockyourbrain.com/en/Imagine brain training came to you as naturally as breathing, walking and talking. Imagine you could learn four new words in a foreign language a day - by integrating it into your every day life. Imagine you could improve your logical thinking and math skills with no effort. Imagine you could train your brain everywhere: on the bus, at the beach, during work and during your breaks. That's UnlockYourBrain. Your unlock screen becomes your training center. You unlock your phone 60 times a day? Now you can train your brain 60 times a day! Features include: a) Learn a language - Vocab Mode teaches you everything you need to know to pick up a new language, or master one you already know. You can learn in any combination of English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese; b) Improve logical thinking and concentration skills - Being good at mental arithmetic can boost your overall brain fitness, not to mention improving your performance at the supermarket cashier or with the restaurant bill; c) Research-based approach - University of Potsdam proved: UnlockYourBrain works! We use the latest research in cognitive science to make learning as fun and easy as possible; and d) Get to know your brain - Easily track the times your brainpower peaks or drops down during the day, week, or even year. StartupsAnonymous https://startupsanonymous.com/
This is a community for startup enthusiasts to share stories, ask questions and offer advice free from retribution. Kinda like AA for startups. Often times, it's hard to find people who are willing to talk openly about their struggles and failures. Anonymity provides a sense of security, which allows the person to speak openly and honestly. The result benefits everyone. If you'd like to identify yourself or your business, you're welcome to do so. Who can submit? Anyone who has a desire. Stories and questions are reviewed before they will appear on the site. If your submission doesn't meet some pretty basic standards (human decency, proper grammar, non-promotional, etc.), they may chose not to publish it. How The Internet Is Making The Whole World Richer http://www.makeuseof.com/tag/internet-making-whole-world-richer

The latest research shows that when prospects search for your company on the Internet, the top 10 listings are likely to include the following:

a) 3 listings from consumer posts to blogs, message boards, and opinion sites,

b) 2 listings from experts,

c) 2 listings from your own corporate site,

d) 1 listing from an online publication, and

e) 2 listings from other sources.

This confirms the need for immediate business intelligence to constantly monitor and evaluate the prospects ongoing searching results for your company, brand, and product. Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A., Executive Director of the Virtual Private Library™, Internet expert, author, speaker, consultant and creator/founder of BotSpot.com will be speaking on The Future of the Internet: eCommerce Security, Cloud Computing, Deep Web, HTML5 and IPV6 with emphasis on the growing areas of bots, intelligent agents, blogs (weblogs), news aggregators, business intelligence, artificial intelligence, Deep Web, RSS, Twitter, FaceBook MashUps, Grids/Clouds, Social Networks, Web 3.0, and The Internet-of-Things (IOT). The Internet's future is both theoretical and practical and will relate to all that gather in cyberspace to continue education and to keep current! We truly live in exciting times .... Will Mash-Ups and the Web 3.0 replace the current Internet as we know it? These and other questions will be discussed during this presentation by one of the Internet's pioneers and bot and artificial intelligence experts, Marcus P. Zillman. The Complete iOS 8 Course with Swift http://bitfountain.io/Over 350+ videos taking you step-by-step through process of building 14 different applications in iOS 8 and XCode 6 using the new Swift programming language. Their iOS Bootcamp teaches the tools needed to develop iPhone and iPad applications for iOS 8. Along our journey, you will learn the syntax of Swift, the language used to develop for iOS, as well as important design patterns and best practices. By the end of the course, you should be able to understand and recreate many of the features seen on popular iOS applications and extend that knowledge to making apps of your own. They believe students learn by building. That's why they have you build 14 apps during the course, with the final app being a full featured dating app with multiple users, direct chat, and complete profiles. Topics Covered include: 1) Swift: Learn the language used to develop all native iOS and Mac apps; 2) iOS 8 and XCode 6: Learn the latest technology platforms from Apple; 3) API Integration: Connect with third party APIs like Facebook and more with NSURLSession; 4) Storyboard: Learn how to create beautiful interfaces using Apple's graphical interface builder; 5) Designing responsive interfaces for the myriad of iOS device screen sizes; 6) Core Data: Store data on your device with the core data database; 7) Git: Learn how to use Git for version control and collaboration; 8) CloudKit: A revolutionary new tool from Apple that allows iOS developers to create database in the cloud right from the iOS client app; 9) Intro to the Metal Framework. Open Library https://openlibrary.org Open Library is an open, editable library catalog with an attractive facade and a lofty mission. The mission? To build an online catalog with a web page for every book ever published. The best part? You can help. From the homepage, click Sign Up, then create a free Open Library account in two simple steps. From there, add new books, write descriptions, manage lists, and generally enjoy contributing to one of the most exciting library projects on the web. Of course, you don't need an account to browse the site, with its 20 million records (and counting). Simply click Authors, Subjects, Recently, or Lists to search the site by category, or type a keyword into the general search function. This will be added to Reference Resources Subject Tracer™. Cosmos Browser Android - Connect To The Internet Through the Use of SMS .. No Data or Wifi Required https://github.com/ColdSauce/CosmosBrowserAndroid Cosmos Browser allows the user to connect to the internet through the use of SMS. No data or WiFi required. After a person inputs a url, our app texts our Twilio number which forwards the URL as a POST request to our Node.JS backend. The backend takes the url, gets the HTML source of the website, minifies it, gets rid of the css, javascript, and images, GZIP compresses it, encodes it in Base64, and sends the data as a series of SMS's. The phone recieves this stream at a rate of 3 messages per second, orders them, decompresses them, and displays the content. Center for Popular Economics - Economics For the People Not Profits http://www.populareconomics.org/
The Center for Popular Economics is a nonprofit collective of political economists based in Amherst, MA. Since our founding in 1979, thousands of people have participated in our workshops and Institutes. Our programs and publications demystify the economy and put useful economic tools in the hands of people fighting for social and economic justice. We examine root causes of economic inequality and injustice including systems of oppression based on race, class, gender, nation and ethnicity. CPE provides a forum for activists, organizers, educators, and progressive economists to come together, learn from one another and work to build a movement for social and economic justice. Linguee - Dictionay and Search Engine for 1,000,000,000 Translations http://www.linguee.com/Linguee is a unique translation tool combining an editorial dictionary and a search engine with which you can search hundreds of millions of bilingual texts for words and expressions. The Linguee search results are divided into two sections. On the left hand side you see results from our reliable editorial dictionary. This provides you with a quick overview of various translations of your search term. On the right hand side, you see example sentences from other sources to give you an idea of how your search term has been translated in context. Compared to traditional online dictionaries, Linguee contains about 1,000 times more translated texts, which are displayed in full sentences. Linguee shows translations for expressions such as "strong evidence", "strong relationship" or "strong opinion", and even for rare expressions or specific technical terms. Places - Privacy for the Masses http://www.joinplaces.com/Places have been created by "Ansamb", which means "together" in French Creole.
Founded by a team of PhDs in Computer Science and Cognitive psychology, Places was designed to offer a totally secure and private alternative of the World "Wild" Web. When we share pictures or files on the Web, we know that somehow, someone in a company or a government can access our content. We know that these contents are backed-up and will stay on someone's server forever. We consider that privacy is for sharing what liberty of speech is for democracy. Sharing under surveillance is not an option. With Places the era of total privacy on the Web starts now! Features include: a) Private - Places uses the highest encryption standards available. On the client side encryption, they use an algorithm that mixes asymetric (RSA 2048) and symetric encryption (aes-256).
Therefore, your content is securely encrypted on your device before it even goes on the Internet; b) Open source - Places is open source because it's the only way to ensure that a technology which deals with privacy and security is really trustable. It enables skilled enough developers to contribute to the code if needed and to build new services that would benefit to everyone in the Places community; and c) Fair deal - Places is free during all the beta. After the beta, they will aim to get money from a paying private cloud storage service that stores your content in a full encrypted version. They will let everyone know as soon as the plan gets more precise. This will be added to Privacy Resources Subject Tracer™ .

WeekendHacker - A Place for Very Small Projects http://www.weekendhacker.net/Wouldn't you sometimes wish you had a list of people you could ask to help you out on a small idea of yours? Not something that is going to take them ages to do, not something that that you probably should pay a freelancer or an company to help you with. Small personal or niche projects that you could do in a couple of hours or days if you just had some help. Whether that is help with coding a cool visualization idea you have or to make your small news feed not look like complete crap. Maybe you have some insight you know could bring in an extra dime if you move fast, but also know will need to look good. WeekendHacker is for that. For finding help with the part you are not so strong in. Whether you do it for money, for fame, for fun or by trading skills is up to you. Their hope is that weekendhacker.net will become a place where cool projects are published, people meet potential cofounders and the network becomes strong enough to build a launchpad for the projects created here. At WeekendHacker, no project is too small but most projects are too big ... Now go build something cool (and small). This will be added to Entrepreneurial Resources Subject Tracer™.

Search Engines: From Social Science Objects To Academic Inquiry Tools by Filippo Trevisan
http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/5237

Abstract:
This paper discusses the challenges and opportunities involved in incorporating publicly available search engine data in scholarly research. In recent years, an increasing number of researchers have started to include tools such as Google Trends (http://google.com/trends) in their work. However, a central 'search engine' field of inquiry has yet to emerge. Rather, the use of search engine data to address social research questions is spread across many disciplines, which makes search valuable across fields but not critical to any one particular area. In an effort to stimulate a comprehensive debate on these issues, this paper reviews the work of pioneering scholars who devised inventive — if experimental — ways of interpreting data generated through search engine accessory applications and makes the point that search engines should be regarded not only as central objects of research, but also as fundamental tools for broader social inquiry. Specific concerns linked to this methodological shift are identified and discussed, including: the relationship with other, more established social research methods; doubts over the representativeness of search engine data; the need to contextualize publicly available search engine data with other types of evidence; and the limited granularity afforded to researchers by tools such as Google Trends. The paper concludes by reflecting on the combination of search engine data with other forms of inquiry as an example of arguably inelegant yet innovative and effective 'kludgy' design (Karpf, 2012).
