Unchecky - Keeps Your Checkboxes Clear

<http://unchecky.com/>

Have you ever felt, while installing software, that the installer tries to push additional unwanted programs at all cost? Ever missed a checkbox, and spent hours afterwards removing adware? Ever opened your browser after an installation, only to find out that you have a new homepage, a new search engine, or even a new browser? Unchecky aims to keep potentially unwanted programs out of your computer. Features include: a) Unchecks - Unchecky automatically unchecks unrelated offers, both saving you mouse clicks and making it less likely to miss a checkbox of an unwanted offer; b) Warns - Installers often try to sneak additional programs as a natural part of the installation. Unchecky warns you when you try to accept a potentially unwanted offer, which makes it less likely to be accepted accidentally; and c) Updates automatically - Install and forget. Unchecky automatically updates whenever a new version is available, so you don't have to worry about running the latest version. This will be added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Entrepreneurial Resources Subject Tracer™.

Docurated - Helping Enterprise Unlock Knowledge Trapped In Cloud and Local Repositories

<https://angel.co/docurated>

Docurated is a knowledge sharing and collaboration platform that unlocks the best content and provides an innovative and useful way to turn all of your content stored locally and in the Cloud into actionable resources to be viewed, manipulated, and managed in a very aesthetic and visual manner. Knowledge workers waste untold hours searching for content that exists somewhere in the depths of their company's file repositories. Often they end up having to re-create it from scratch. Docurated provides a layer over existing file systems, enabling you to quickly and easily surface, reuse and collaborate on your most relevant content. The applicable use-cases run across the various lines of business - anyone who produces and uses content can benefit.. This will be added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Knowledge Discovery Subject Tracer™.

WorldLister - A Smarter Way To Sell Online

<http://worldlister.co/>

Selling online for the mobile generation just got easier! WorldLister is the fastest, most efficient way to list items to online marketplaces like eBay. It's the only free Web application that both simplifies and demystifies the process of listing items. It can be used on any smartphone, tablet, or desktop - the way mobile eCommerce should be. WorldLister intuitively guides you step-by-step and magically generates a complete, attractive listing that reflects the true value of your new or used items. Mover - The Platform for Moving Files

<https://legacy.mover.io/>

Mover was created to streamline the process of transferring your data to the cloud. You can use Mover to change cloud-storage providers, back up your website or files, all while reducing user anxiety about how and where their data is being transferred. Once you are signed up, it takes just a few clicks to start your transfers. Their philosophy: "At Mover we stand for data freedom. We believe that you should be able to do whatever you want with your data. Gone are the days of being locked into the walled gardens that are huge siloed file storage systems. One of the biggest uses of Mover is to shuttle files between cloud storage platforms. In our future it doesn't matter where you keep your files, documents, or just stuff. Mover can find it and put it where you need it to be. The concept of data portability is rapidly evolving and Mover is the catalyst spurring it on." Webprojector - Present Your Projects In a Browser

<http://www.webprojector.org/>

Webprojector is an easy tool for web designer. With the help of their system you can present your projects in a browser for free. It's all very easy! All you have to do is to drag and drop your project to the their window, then the Webprojector will do the rest for you. After registration you can save your work and track the number of visits on your projects. You can also use email notification system to check if a client has already opened your project! All of that allows for documenting changes and tracking visit statistics. Their system will automatically upload the project onto their server and prepare a link under which you and your clients will be able to view and comment it. The project is only visible to the people with whom you've shared the link. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Curious - A Better Way To Learn Anything

<http://curious.com/>

At Curious they believe in lifelong learning. Learning for its own sake. Learning that happens beyond classrooms, and not only in academic subjects (unless you count beer brewing, pipe soldering, and organic gardening as academic). Learning as a necessity of living. At Curious they also believe great teachers are as valuable to society as great business leaders or academic thinkers. They wonder why there are hundreds of high-tech ways to share silly photos, and military-grade technology can help us find our friends at a bar, but teachers have few quality tools to help them succeed online. They believe teachers are some of society's greatest entrepreneurs and should be treated as such. They also believe that videos of cats dancing the Macarena, and super-slo-mo exploding watermelons are really cool, but not the kind of online learning we're talking about. And that Justin's new band only reminds us a little bit of this. But that's another story... Mostly, they believe in being curious. Visit their ever expanding Lesson Collections. Gwitter - Quick Smart Twitter Search

<http://gwitter.com/>

Gwitter.com's mission is to offer you the smartest and quickest Twitter search on the desktop, tablet and mobile. Gwitter is a Twitter API based search website. It allows you to better search any Twitter account for older tweets, linked web pages and pictures. You simply enter your own or any other Twitter username in the search box and let Gwitter pull up your older tweets. Once they are uploaded you can browse, search and analyse them. You can filter search results by hashtags, @mention and time and sort your searches by relevance and date. Gwitter also allows you to view only web pages or pictures linked to tweets. The statistics tab gives you an access to data, such as your top tweeting hour of the day or the most active tweeting day of the week. At the moment, Gwitter is a single man's effort, mostly developed by @jeteve, a web applications developer based in London, UK. Digital Curation Centre

<http://www.dcc.ac.uk/>

The Digital Curation Centre (DCC) states as its motto: "because good research needs good data." Based in the United Kingdom, the DCC provides expert advice and helps those in the UK higher education and research communities store, manage, protect, and share digital research data. As such, the site is a great resource for information specialists, particularly librarians and academics. Visitors should make sure to check out the Digital Curation area which provides a bit of background on the field, along with information for newcomers to the field. The homepage also contains a neat feature entitled Editor's Choice, which brings together reports on digital preservation, information on new books, and much more. Also, visitors can sign up for the PCC's newsletter and take a look at its tag cloud. The Resources area should also not be missed as it features how-to guides, data management plans, case studies, and white papers. Kuizza - Online Resource Tool for Testing One's Knowledge of Any Topic

<http://www.kuizza.com/>

Kuizza is an online resource tool for testing one's knowledge of any topic imaginable. Users can take quizzes (pronounced "quizzes", kool kids use a k) on nearly anything they wish and receive instant feedback on their results. Users may also contribute quizzes by creating their own through our Create A Quiz page. Kuizza seeks to allow people to validate their knoweldge base and encourage curiosity and action. Join Kuizza today and start learning! Konami? Kuizza was created after realizing there was not a substantial, single point, free online resource for testing one's knowledge. Whether it be for school, personal education, or professional inquiry, Kuizza is an open resource for your use. For many entrepreneurs, education is a self-determined discipline driven by need, desire, and curiosity. We hope to provide a strong, usable resource for curious people in the world. Konami? Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy - A Peer-Reviewed Academic Resource

<http://www.iep.utm.edu/home/>

The Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy (IEP) (ISSN 2161-0002) was founded in 1995 as a non-profit organization to provide open access to detailed, scholarly information on key topics and philosophers in all areas of philosophy. The Encyclopedia receives no funding, and operates through the volunteer work of the editors, authors, volunteers, and technical advisers. At present the IEP is visited by over 500,000 persons per month. The Encyclopedia is free of charge and available to all users of the Internet world-wide. The staff of 30 editors and approximately 300 authors hold doctorate degrees and are professors at colleges and universities around the world, most notably from English-speaking countries. The purpose of the IEP is to provide detailed, scholarly information on key topics and philosophers in all areas of philosophy. The Encyclopedia's articles are written with the intention that most of the article can be understood by advanced undergraduates majoring in philosophy and by other scholars who are not working in the field covered by that article. The IEP articles are written by experts but not for experts in analogy to the way the Scientific American magazine is written by scientific experts but not primarily for scientific experts. Writefull - A New Way of Writing With Confidence

<http://writefullapp.com/>

We all use Google to check if our writing is correct. We enter different phrases until we find the one that gives us most results – and this is the one we use in our own text. A smart approach, but not without its annoyances: revisiting the Google webpage breaks the flow of our writing, and its results often contain grammatical errors. What if you could use this Google-approach, but within your own writing tool, with better results, and with writing-tailored search options? This is exactly what Writefull does! Writefull is a light-weight app that uses data from Google Books (5+ million books) and the Web to give you language support. All you need to do is select a chunk from your text, activate the Writefull popover, and choose one of its options including a) Check the number of results; b) Compare the number of results; c) See examples in context; d) Find words in context; and e) Find synonyms in context. Spill - Bring Empathy to Schools

<http://www.indiegogo.com/projects/spill-bring-empathy-to-schools>

Spill is a confidential place for young adults to “spill” about life issues anonymously, and share advice, support, and encouragement with one other. No judgement. No stigma. Just empathy. They started Spill 3 years ago as college kids ourselves. They just wanted a way to talk about personal problems without feeling judged. When hundreds of students signed up to get involved, they realized that a lot of people were struggling in silence. Together they have spread to 150 college campuses, changing thousands of lives and working with professionals to prevent dozens of potential student suicides. Last year, Spill won the Global Social Venture Competition for its impact in suicide prevention, competing against 600 teams from over 50 countries. It's just the beginning. They want to bring Spill to high schools, military veterans, and more colleges, but to launch a sustainable community it typically requires $400-500, and this year they have more interest than they can take on. They need help from people who care. It only takes 20 people per school to make Spill a reality for the entire student body. By chipping in $25 for a school that means something to you, they can work together to serve over 100,000 students in 2014. This will be added to Student Research Resources Subject Tracer™.

Eulergy - Making Connections That Help Drive Innovation

<http://www.eulergy.com/>

What would happen if you had access to the smart, keen, innovative minds in Universities? Just think what we could make together - institutions and business. Every year thousands of students world-wide produce research and development work as part of their curricula. The majority of their works seldom break from the academic institution or the payment walls of journals. Every year companies, charities and governments struggle to find disruptive solutions to a constantly changing market – sorely needed innovation and insight. At Eulergy we believe in a different vision. We believe that academic work can be used to solve real problems. That students can be rewarded for their efforts and companies can access a pool of creative minds and future employees. Brief overview: a) Propose: Students or companies propose projects they are studying or intend to realize; b) Search: Companies search for relevant ideas and cooperate with students and universities in tailoring the work to their needs; c) Progress: Students can receive: resources; facilities; internships; money and sorely needed industry contacts for carrying out their academic projects and realizing work that makes a concrete impact on business and

Many faculty members of Penn State's College of Earth and Mineral Sciences have created digital educational resources for their students. In the interest of sharing these excellent resources, the Open Educational Resources site presents digital video, texts, simulations, animations and illustrations crafted by these learned individuals. First-time users can get started by looking over the Featured Content area, which brings together everything from a hands-on, Flash-based application that helps students learn about energy consumption to a lesson on seismic hazards. Additionally, visitors can also sign up to receive updates about new additions to the site and also learn more about contributing their own work. This will be added to Education and Academic Resources Subject Tracer™. This will be added to Student Research Resources Subject Tracer™. From The Scout Report, Copyright Internet Scout 1994-2014.

Smithsonian Research Online

<http://research.si.edu/>

Every week, every month, and every year, the Smithsonian Institution and its various entities produce publications that appear online and in digital form. One could imagine that looking for each document separately would be quite time-consuming. Fortunately, the Smithsonian Research Online site allows visitors to look for such documents quickly and efficiently. On the left-hand side of the page, visitors can look over areas such as Reports, Export Data, Statistics, and an FAQ section. All of these areas contain helpful information, including links to other sites with related reports and documents. The homepage also has a basic search engine that allows users to limit their search to certain authors, titles, years, or even by museum or department. This has been added to Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

viXra.org - An Alternative Archive of 6393 e-prints in Science and Mathematics

<http://vixra.org/>

ViXra.org is an e-print archive set up as an alternative to the popular arXiv.org service owned by Cornell University. It has been founded by scientists who find they are unable to submit their articles to arXiv.org because of Cornell University's policy of endorsements and moderation designed to filter out e-prints that they consider inappropriate. ViXra is an open repository for new scientific articles. It does not endorse e-prints accepted on its website, neither does it review them against criteria such as correctness or author's credentials. Glean - Finding the Best Educational Videos for Students

<https://glean.co/>

Hundreds of amazing teachers post educational videos online every day. At Glean, they have structured and organized these videos, tagged them by educational standard, and wrapped them in interactive tools (like Q&A and practice exercises). They have even built technology to pick the ideal teacher for the student based on his/her learning style and ability. Their technology works by pairing students with the best lessons for them. Together their team of teachers have watched these lessons, studying and collecting a number of details on every lesson – setting, pace, teaching style, grade level, and more! With Glean, students discover lessons by searching or browsing directly within a subject. Once a topic is chosen, Glean will quickly scan and analyze all the teachers within that topic to find those who match a student's learning style closest. And if the video is not quite right for them, tell Glean and it gets better. They are a small team with a big vision, and they believe everyone, everywhere deserves a free world-class education. TrueVault - HIPAA Compliant File Storage

<http://www.TrueVault.com/>

Secure API to store health data. HIPAA compliance made easier for healthcare applications. Features include: a) Built for Developers - Store and search protected health information (PHI) in any file format with a simple RESTful API. No pre-defined schemas to follow; b) HIPAA Compliant - We handle all of the technical requirements mandated by the HIPAA Security Rule. Typical integration takes days and saves months of dev time; c) BAA + Insurance - TrueVault will sign a Business Associate Agreement (BAA), and protects customers under a comprehensive Privacy/Data Breach insurance policy; d) Startups - TrueVault was built to help startups simplify the complexities of HIPAA. TrueVault will save you hundreds of dev hours. Focus on building your software's core functionality, and let TrueVault protect your data at HIPAA-security levels; e) Mobile Apps - Store your app's protected health data in TrueVault. We take care of HIPAA so that you can focus on creating healthcare apps on any platform; f) Web Apps - You don't have to worry about setting up and maintaining your own HIPAA compliant application stack. TrueVault will handle the Physical and Technical Safeguards required by HIPAA; and g) Wearable Health Tech Devices - Emerging technology dances the line between consumer health data and PHI. Sharing data with a HIPAA-defined Covered Entity (such as a doctor) makes the data PHI and it needs to be protected at HIPAA-security levels. Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Rent-a-crowd? Crowdfunding Academic Research by Rebecca English

<http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/4818>

Abstract:

This paper examines the use of crowdfunding platforms to fund academic research. Looking specifically at the use of a Pozible campaign to raise funds for a small pilot research study into home education in Australia, the paper reports on the success and problems of using the platform. It also examines the crowdsourcing of literature searching as part of the package. The paper looks at the realities of using this type of platform to gain start-up funding for a project and argues that families and friends are likely to be the biggest supporters. The finding that family and friends are likely to be the highest supporters supports similar work in the arts communities that are traditionally served by crowdfunding platforms. The paper argues that, with exceptions, these platforms can be a source of income in times where academics are finding it increasingly difficult to source government funding for projects.
