UpToDate

<https://www.uptodate.com/>

UpToDate is an evidence-based, physician-authored clinical decision support resource which clinicians trust to make the right point-of-care decisions. More than 6,500 world-renowned physician authors, editors, and peer reviewers use a rigorous editorial process to synthesize the most recent medical information into trusted, evidence-based recommendations that are proven to improve patient care and quality. Over 1.3 million clinicians in 187 countries and nearly 90% of major academic medical centers in the United States rely on UpToDate to provide the best care. More than 80 research studies confirm widespread usage of UpToDate and the association of its use with improved patient care and hospital performance — including reduced length of stay, fewer adverse complications, and lower mortality. UpToDate has earned the trust of the healthcare community over more than 25 years because of the integrity of its recommendations, including the fact that we never accept funding from pharmaceutical companies, medical device manufacturers, or other commercial entities. UpToDate topics are viewed more than 43 million times per month, and our 2016 subscriber survey found that clinicians find the answers to their question over 94% of the time. This success reflects the breadth (25 specialties) and depth of our clinical content (over 11,000 topic reviews, each of which answers multiple clinical questions). Digital Einstein Papers Science einsteinpapers.press.princeton.edu

Princeton University Press, Hebrew University, and the Einstein Paper Project at the California Institute of Technology have collaborated to create the Digital Einstein Papers, which is an open-access site for The Collected Papers of Albert Einstein. The Digital Einstein Papers feature a number of documents in the Einstein collections at Hebrew University and CalTech, including scientific papers, diaries, lecture notes, interviews, and correspondence. As of this write-up, the collection features most of Einstein's papers published through the year 1923. The papers are arranged chronologically into thirteen volumes. Visitors may choose to read the "black volumes" (in original German with English annotations) or the "white volumes" (completely translated into English). New visitors may want to start by watching a helpful video overview of the collection by editor Diana Kormos Buchwald, available in the about section. Buchwald, who is also a professor of history in the humanities and social sciences, describes some of the highlights in the collection. All documents are available in print-friendly format. With the right combination of accuracy and actionable information, Legislation Watch is designed to let you be in control of your business while having peace of mind when it comes to legal twist and turns brought on by new policies. Features include: a) Timely - When legal changes affect your business, it is better to know sooner than later. We monitor the process from the first noise made by lobbyists to the final implementation and adjudication of new legislation. And keep you posted at every step; b) Accurate - The exact meaning and intent when it comes to new legislation can be difficult to understand. You need to dig into political reviews, case law and opinions from industry experts to get the full picture. We do this for you and give you complete summary; c) Actionable - Having the knowledge that upcoming regulations will affect your business is not enough. You need to know what the next step is. For all major changes we create complete checklists that allow you to see how far (or close) you are from complying to the new laws; and d) Personal - Every startup is different. Your cocktail is different from most others. That is why we let you choose which areas to monitor and put together your own specific areas to monitor. Firesub - Reusable Checklists for Teams

<https://firesub.com/>

Firesub ensures that teams have processes, that is up to date, and is performed, at the right time, by the right person. Perform tasks with ease and Firesub is built to be easy for people and teams to perform the right task at the right time. Features: a) Triggers - Create triggers that will automatically trigger new checklists when your team needs them. Triggers can, for example be a time interval or a request from another system; b) Checklists - Create beautiful and simple checklists that are easy to maintain and keep up to date. Assign people, and keep track of the progress; and c) Outcomes - Use outcomes to add actions to be performed when checklists are completed, for example, let people leave a comment, select checklist results like Approved or Not approved. Or automatically notify someone by email. This will be added to World Wide Web Reference Subject Tracer™. This will be added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™. Rather than having all of the software and hardware that you need on your desktop, cloud computing allows you to use the resources available in the "cloud." For example, you can buy additional storage using the Amazon Simple Storage Service (Amazon S3), or additional processing capabilities with Amazon's EC2 (Amazon Elastic Compute Cloud). Minerazzi - Your Search-and-Mine

<http://www.minerazzi.com/>

They define a miner as an on-topic search engine that allows users to search, index, mine, and recrawl web resources. Users can do these tasks straight from a search results page. This new search paradigm is aimed at turning searchers into data miners. Miners can be built from individual web pages (from-the-bottom-up) or a pre-existent directory (from-top-to-bottom), turning said directory into a data mining machine. Because each miner is a microindex loaded with data extraction tools, users can deploy these to enhance or build their own curated collections. What is a microindex? They define a microindex as a small collection of primary URLs about a given topic or knowledge domain. Recrawling these allows users to discover new, secondary URLs with fresh and somehow related content. The total number of primary and secondary URLs defines the reach of a microindex. LITA Blog

<http://www.litablog.org/>

The American Library Association's Library Information Technology Association (LITA) offers this helpful blog for library professionals who want to stay abreast of developments in library technology. In addition, the blog provides updates about conferences, webinars, and other LITA events. The blog is authored by a number of librarians, including those who work in academic, public, and corporate libraries. The LITA blog also welcomes guest posts from librarians. One recent blog post updated readers about a LITA webinar series regarding privacy in libraries. In another blog post, librarian Mark Beatty explains how he came to be a Jeopardy! contestant. This post includes a link to a delightful American Libraries article that features interviews with librarians who have appeared on the game show. The LITA blog also posts regular updates about job opportunities in information technology. This will be added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™. Pandoc - Universal Document Converter

<http://www.pandoc.org>

Pandoc bills itself as "a universal document converter." It can read input files in nearly twenty markup formats (including Markdown, reStructuredText, textile, and HTML) and convert them to over forty other formats (including docx, odt, epub, tei, and many, many more). A diagram of the built-in conversions is shown on the bottom of Pandoc's "about" page. These format conversions can be used to bring content to new devices. For example, a user could download the HTML of a web page and convert it to an ebook for offline reading. Pandoc can also be used for document production. For example, users can write presentation slides in Markdown using their favorite text editor, then use Pandoc to generate a PowerPoint presentation. The same Markdown file can also be used to generate a reveal.js version of the presentation that can be uploaded to a website. Pandoc understands the Citation Style Language (CSL) of citationstyles.org and can also generate bibliographies for academic work. Pandoc is a free software, released under the GNU General Public License with source code available on the "installing" page. The "installing" page also lists installers for Windows, macOS, Linux, and BSD operating systems. This will be added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™. The Open Science Training Handbook

<https://open-science-training-handbook.gitbooks.io/book/content/>

A group of fourteen authors came together in February 2018 at the TIB (German National Library of Science and Technology) in Hannover to create an open, living handbook on Open Science training. High-quality trainings are fundamental when aiming at a cultural change towards the implementation of Open Science principles. Teaching resources provide great support for Open Science instructors and trainers. The Open Science training handbook will be a key resource and a first step towards developing Open Access and Open Science curricula and andragogies. Supporting and connecting an emerging Open Science community that wishes to pass on their knowledge as multipliers, the handbook will enrich training activities and unlock the community's full potential. Sharing their experience and skills of imparting Open Science principles, the authors produced an open knowledge and educational resource oriented to practical teaching. The focus of the new handbook is not spreading the ideas of Open Science, but showing how to spread these ideas most effectively. The form of a book sprint as a collaborative writing process maximized creativity and innovation, and ensured the production of a valuable resource in just a few days. The Beginner's Guide To Online Privacy by Iulian Gulea

<https://medium.freecodecamp.org/the-beginners-guide-to-online-privacy-7149b33c4a3e>

We are living in remarkable times. We can make pictures of places and people we like by pressing a button on our phones; shop from our homes for literally anything from needles to cars; reach hundreds of thousands of people through social and blogging platforms, and consume information on any topic in any volume at any time of the day. For a person from 30 years ago it might sound very futuristic. For us it's just how things are. Common sense. But all that comes at a price. And that price is our privacy. Misinformation Overload

<https://www.llrx.com/2018/04/misinformation-overload/>

We live in uncertain times. With big data and a boom in our ability to transmit ideas comes a seemingly greater amount of erroneous information, and therefore the need for everyone to be able to properly identify, discredit, and prevent the spread of falsehoods. What follows is a tour of how much the misrepresentation of reality pervades our world (from whimsical pranks and well-intentioned hoaxes to full-blown propaganda intended to defraud and manipulate), concluding with a discussion of tactics for taking a rational and scientific view so that we may both decrease our susceptibility and improve our ability to detect misinformation. Peekier - Privacy Oriented Search Engine

<https://peekier.com/>

Peekier (pronounced /'pi·ki·er/) is a new way to search the web. Peek through search results fast and securely on a search engine that respects your privacy. Peekier shows you a website preview of the search results. Clicking on a result will maximize the preview and allow you to scroll through the website. You can then decide if the information displayed on the website interests you or not before clicking on the link. The average website on the internet weighs in at around 2.5 MB and requires 100 HTTP requests to load. Peekier renders websites on an array of superfast servers and sends your browser a clean and efficient 40-80 KB PNG image. This is especially useful on a mobile connection, where the loading delay dictates that you only want to open a link that interests you. As websites are loaded on their servers and they only send the rendered image to your browser, they deal with malware and other threats while protecting your privacy and providing a safe and secure experience while you stay on their website. You can still choose to visit a website that interests you—the choice is yours. They take your privacy very seriously! They are pretty sure they are the search engine with the most privacy oriented features in the world. Peekier does not log your personal info or track you throughout your browsing sessions. Paper - False Information on Web and Social Media: A Survey

“False information can be created and spread easily through the web and social media platforms, resulting in widespread real-world impact. Characterizing how false information proliferates on social platforms and why it succeeds in deceiving readers are critical to develop efficient detection algorithms and tools for early detection. A recent surge of research in this area has aimed to address the key issues using methods based on feature engineering, graph mining, and information modeling. Majority of the research has primarily focused on two broad categories of false information: opinion-based (e.g., fake reviews), and fact-based (e.g., false news and hoaxes). Therefore, in this work, we present a comprehensive survey spanning diverse aspects of false information, namely (i)

Accessibility of Anonymity Networks: How Can Web Accessibility Policies Promote the Usability of Darknets for Persons with Disabilities? by G. Anthony Giannoumis

<http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/6194>

Abstract:

Public and private interests concerned over the right to privacy and freedom of expression on the Internet have contributed to the creation and adoption of anonymity networks. Previous research has yet to examine fully the accessibility of anonymity networks for persons with disabilities. Thus, I ask, “To what extent can existing policy approaches to Web accessibility promote the usability of anonymity networks by persons with disabilities?” Using the U.K. and Norway as examples, I argue that existing self-regulatory approaches to Web accessibility policy may provide a useful basis for promoting the accessibility of anonymity networks.
