Notes and Suggestions for 2022 Virtual Shopping

Whether your gift list is ready or you're wondering how long you can wait to start your holiday shopping, the Federal Trade Commission has online tips to help you get the best deals. The bottom line: Some extra research can really pay off:

Set a Budget. Create a gift list and check it twice to help you stay on track and not overspend.

Decide What Matters. Especially if you're buying gadgets, know what your "must-have" features are vs. those that are just nice to have.

Use Search Engines and ShoppigBots. Type a company or product name into your search engine with terms like "review," "complaint" or "scam" to find out more about it.

Read Reviews Online. Reviews from other people, experts, and columnists can give you an idea of how a product performs. But don't put all of your trust in one review.

Consider Reputation. A brand's reputation for quality and good customer service can really pay off.

Check Comparison Shopping Sites. They connect to many retailers selling the same product, sometimes at significantly different prices. Keep shipping costs in mind.

Consider Coupons. Some companies offer discounts via e-mail, and some websites collect and list codes for free shipping and other discounts. Search for the store with terms like "discount," "coupon" or "free shipping."

Read Return Policies. Not all stores have the same rules. Some charge fees for return shipping or restocking things like electronics.

Decide How to Pay. When you shop online, credit cards can offer extra protections.

Look for a Secure Checkout. Does the website start with https (the "s" stands for secure) when you're checking out?

Free Law Project – Financial Disclosure Database Is Now Available to All

<https://free.law/2021/10/15/financial-disclosures-now-available-to-all-on-courtlistener>

Included in their database are: Over 250,000 pages of financial records dating from 2003-2020, with complete coverage of every judge, justice, and magistrate between 2011 and 2018. Over 1.5 million investment records. Around 12,000 sources of income outside of regular investments. More than 1,700 gifts received by federal judges. And a lot more.

They have made a huge effort to gather every possible disclosure. Read their coverage page for caveats and details. First, they have integrated this data into the CourtListener website, where you can look up any judge and see their disclosures. For every judge that you look up, you will see a detailed page with all the data we have extracted, including their investments, gifts, spousal income, other sources of income and more. Of course, they have made a simple downloadable PDF of every disclosure as well. Second, because they know that some of you will have bigger ambitions for this data, they are launching a new API for financial disclosures. This API powers the CourtListener website above, and

ChartBuilder

<https://quartz.github.io/Chartbuilder>

Chartbuilder is designed to turn numerical data into polished, ready-to-publish static charts in just a few steps. The tool was originally developed by the financial news site Quartz for its journalists to easily create charts for their articles. Chartbuilder can create an XY chart or a chart grid with a number of options to customize formatting and appearance. A helpful preview window shows how the chart will look on mobile as well as desktop. Users can input their raw data as plaintext or import a JSON file, and they can export the final product as a PNG image, SVG, or JSON. Chartbuilder’s interface is designed for functionality, but there is a steep learning curve for beginners since there are no instructions or tutorials on the page. Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Introduction to the Special Issue on Sustainability and Digital Transformation by

Glenn Muschert and Massimo Ragnedda

<https://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/12351>

Abstract:

This piece introduces the special issue of First Monday focused on the topic of Sustainability and Digital Transformation. This collection is a forum for that conversation to develop as a venue in which social scientists, STS scholars, and other digital scholars explore the concept of digital sustainability. This special issue emerges in the context of two notable social trends. First, there is a push for global sustainable development, and second, all sectors of human endeavor are migrating into the digital sphere. These two trends combine into a single, nascent theme of digital sustainability, which is the topic of this collection of articles in First Monday. The focus is upon the role(s) of digital technologies in establishing a sustainable world. The collection includes seven papers, which make a modest contribution to the growing discourse about the sociological aspects of all things digital in sustainability practices. The aim is to establish a research agenda focusing on digital technologies' current and potential role (but also limitations). The articles pay special attention to the intricate interplay of technology, social dynamics of media, sustainability practices, and information change. The contributors have provided individual works that contribute to the digital sustainability scholarship, some conceptual and others analytical. The collection invites the reader to consider sustainability and the ever-expanding integration of digital technologies in various aspects of social life
