V21N11

November 2023

Welcome to the V21N11 November 2023 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant especially in today’s post COVID-19 New Economy and New Normal 2024 world!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers 2024 Data Mining MiniGuide and is a comprehensive listing of competent Internet data mining resources and tools including the new economy and new normal internet directories, subject guides and index resources and sites on the Internet available for the 2023/2024 year. The below list is taken partially from my 2023 Data Mining MiniGuide and is constantly updated with Subject Tracer™ bots at the following URL:

<http://www.2023DataMiningMiniGuide.com/>

These resources and sources will help you to discover the many new pathways available through the Internet to find the latest new and existing world wide web and Internet competent data mining research sources, tools and sites. As this site is constantly updated it would be to your benefit to bookmark and return to the above URL frequently. The below resources and sources will be your pathfinder to all the new and existing competent Internet data mining research tools and resources.

Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Discernment: Blurring and Visual Evidence by Sandra Braman
<https://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/13245/11056>

Abstract:

Researchers thinking about visual evidence in the legal system address quite a variety of empirical questions but share an absorption in the ways in which the evidentiary problem is rooted in the blurring of genres. The blurring is plural: between illustration and proof, between interpretation and requiring an interpretation, between knowledge and perception, and between argument and evidence. Because genres are an intimate and essential part of the functioning of legal processes, such blurrings in turn problematize long-standing practices and the design of governance processes. Their findings are important theoretically, as well, in three ways. They show that the model of fact production processes must begin a step earlier than does the Lockean model of the fact upon which “western” and “modern” society and “science” have relied. The model must continue on beyond where Locke and those who think about the social construction of reality, such as Berger and Luckmann, stop. And “contextual” matters such as warranting, provenance, and authority must be incorporated into our model of the information production chain itself. In combination, what we are learning from research on visual evidence is thus not only invaluable for addressing the profound real-world problems identified by the authors assembled by Sandra Ristovska in this special issue of First Monday and others, but for our understanding of challenges being presented to the nature of governance itself both within and beyond the formal legal system.
