Deep Web Research and Discovery Resources 2023 – July 2023 Edition

<http://www.DeepWeb.us/>

I have just updated my white paper link dataset compilation and now titled Deep Web Research and Discovery Resources 2023 and it is now a 100 page PDF document (1,347 KB) freely available directly from the above URL. This update verified all links as well as reviewed all resources covered including adding additional links. Currently, this has been downloaded over 12,000,000+ times! [Updated on July 5, 2023]

Open Educational Resources (OER) Sources 2023 – July 2023 Edition

<http://www.OERSources.com/>

“Open Educational Resources (OER) Sources 2023 are freely accessible, openly licensed text, media, and other digital assets that are useful for teaching, learning, and assessing as well as for research purposes” [Wikipedia]. Costs continue to rise for students who are pursuing college and post-graduate degree programs. By leveraging best practice sites, services, and non-traditional options to expand knowledge, skills, and abilities in many disciplines, students can choose from a wide range of options to complete their respective goals. This freely available guide, Open Educational Resources (OER) Sources 2023, is a comprehensive listing of useful open educational resources, sources, and sites on the Internet that can assist you in optimizing your learning opportunities. This will be added to OERSearchEngine.com. This will be added to Education and Academic Resources Subject Tracer™. This will be added to Student Research Resources Subject Tracer™. Completely updated including all links validated on July 6, 2023. [73 pages; 1115KB PDF]

Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Discernment: Blurring and Visual Evidence by Sandra Braman

<https://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/13245/11056>

Abstract:

Researchers thinking about visual evidence in the legal system address quite a variety of empirical questions but share an absorption in the ways in which the evidentiary problem is rooted in the blurring of genres. The blurring is plural: between illustration and proof, between interpretation and requiring an interpretation, between knowledge and perception, and between argument and evidence. Because genres are an intimate and essential part of the functioning of legal processes, such blurrings in turn problematize long-standing practices and the design of governance processes. Their findings are important theoretically, as well, in three ways. They show that the model of fact production processes must begin a step earlier than does the Lockean model of the fact upon which “western” and “modern” society and “science” have relied. The model must continue on beyond where Locke and those who think about the social construction of reality, such as Berger and Luckmann, stop. And “contextual” matters such as warranting, provenance, and authority must be incorporated into our model of the information production chain itself. In combination, what we are learning from research on visual evidence is thus not only invaluable for addressing the profound real-world problems identified by the authors assembled by Sandra Ristovska in this special issue of First Monday and others, but for our understanding of challenges being presented to the nature of governance itself both within and beyond the formal legal system.
