V7N4

April 2009

Welcome to the V7N4 April 2009 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month's featured report will be highlighting Grid, Distributed and Cloud Computing Resources. These resources are also available at the following URL:

<http://www.GridResources.info/>

These resources are designed to be your private virtual library for the latest and greatest grid, distributed and cloud computing search engines, subject directories and resources that are currently available from the Internet. With the advent of faster and more powerful personal and enterprise computing, these resources are now becoming of paramount importance in the development of new and exciting ways that we can harness the power of grid, distributed and cloud computing in our business and personal lives! Very soon these resources will make a true difference in the way we use the Internet and how computing applications will be used.

Awareness Watch™ Spotters

InfoBionics - Flexible Data Mining Applications

<http://www.infobionics.com/>

The revolutionary Infobionics Knowledge Server™ empowers organizations to make more agile and strategic business decisions by extracting hidden meaning from data now trapped in rigid and disparate databases. The Infobionics Knowledge Server is the ideal platform for developing powerful and flexible knowledge mining applications, including business intelligence, predictive analysis and bioinformatics with less IT involvement. Other application areas that can leverage the Infobionics Knowledge Server are social networking, Web 2.0, supply chain management, and factory automation. This has been added to Data Mining Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Prediction Market Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Biological Informatics Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

What It Costs - Everything Costs Something

<http://www.whatitcosts.com/>

What It Costs is an online leader in providing information on the costs associated with a wide variety of services and concepts. Whether you want to know the price range of practical activities -- such as removing a tree stump from your yard, having your teeth whitened or joining a gym – or are interested in our more unusual articles – such as the cost of climbing the Seven Summits, joining the mile high club or cleaning up a murder scene – you will find all this and more on their website. Their experienced team of writers research and compile the latest information on these and a host of other timely topics and present the facts in a thorough and easy-to-read format. They also regularly add new content, so you will always find something new and exciting on their site. This has been added to ShoppingBots and Online Shopping 2009 Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

South East European Journal of Economics and Business (SEE)

<http://www.efsa.unsa.ba/see>

School of Economics and Business in Sarajevo is the official publisher of South East European Journal of Economics and Business. The main objective is to establish and develop an indexed academic periodical focused on economics and business. It is very crucial for SEE Journal to be indexed in world's relevant databases. SEE Journal of Economics and Business is a research-oriented journal, which covers the disciplines of economics and business with a particular emphasis on economic issues of South East European countries. The Journal's audience gathers educators, students and practitioners from various business backgrounds, entrepreneurs, government officials and others from geographical area of South Eastern Europe. While other journals focus on particular disciplines of economics and business, SEE Journal focuses on specific geographical area of South Eastern Europe adopting multi-disciplinary approach. In this manner, SEE Journal welcomes cooperation with authors involved in wide range of research, focused on issues of SEE countries. SEE Journal of Economics and Business is published in English language two times a year.

Togaware - Data Mining Resources

<http://datamining.togaware.com/>

Rattle is a free and open source data mining toolkit written in the statistical language R using the Gnome graphical interface. It runs under GNU/Linux, Macintosh OS X, and MS/Windows. Rattle is being used in business and for teaching data mining in Australia and internationally. The open source statistical programming language R (based on S) is in daily use in academia and in business and government. They use R for data mining within the Australian Taxation Office. Rattle is used by those wishing to interact with R through a GUI. R is memory based so that on 32bit CPUs you are limited to smaller datasets (perhaps 50,000 up to 100,000, depending on what you are doing). Deploying R on 64bit multiple CPU (AMD64) servers running GNU/Linux with 32GB of main memory provides a powerful platform for data mining. R is open source, thus providing assurance that there will always be the opportunity to fix and tune things that suit our specific needs, rather than rely on having to convince a vendor to fix or tune their product to suit our needs. Also, by being open source, we can be sure that the code will always be available, unlike some of the data mining products that have disappeared (e.g., IBM's Intelligent Miner). Open standards are important for users, but vendors resist them for obvious reasons, and would prefer to lock you in to their products. A number of commercial tools claim support of, for example, the open standard PMML for interoperability (sharing models between applications). But the support is patchy and not worth the effort. We have started a PMML effort in R to attempt to address the desire for interoperability. Specific commercial statistical products are excellent in handling very large datasets. But they are limited in the analytic algorithms they provide. Commercial vendors, naturally, need to be convinced of the usefulness of implementing new algorithms. On the other hand, a vast selection has been available for deployment in R for a long time. This has been added to Data Mining Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Fanurio - Time Tracking Software for Freelancers

<http://www.fanuriotimetracking.com/>

Fanurio is a time tracking and billing software application, highly appreciated by freelancers for its simple interface, flexible timer and ability to produce detailed invoices. Whether you need to round time, use multiple currencies or create invoices with your own layout, Fanurio has the right tools to help you get paid. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Entrepreneurial Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

ProPublica - Investigative Journalism In the Public Interest

<http://www.propublica.org/>

ProPublica is an independent, non-profit newsroom that produces investigative journalism in the public interest. Their work focuses exclusively on truly important stories, stories with “moral force.” They do this by producing journalism that shines a light on exploitation of the weak by the strong and on the failures of those with power to vindicate the trust placed in them. ProPublica is led by Paul Steiger, the former managing editor of The Wall Street Journal. Stephen Engelberg, a former managing editor of The Oregonian, Portland, Oregon and former investigative editor of The New York Times, is ProPublica’s managing editor. Lead funding for this effort is being provided by the Sandler Foundation, with Herbert Sandler serving as Chairman of ProPublica; other leading philanthropies also providing important support. A Board of Directors and a Journalism Advisory Board have also been formed. This has been added to Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

International Journal of Social Robotics

<http://www.springer.com/engineering/robotics/journal/12369>

This journal is a periodic publication which consolidates high impact contributions from researchers and developers in the field of social robotics, offering readers a holistic view of this emerging industry. Its purpose is manifold. On the one hand, it serves as a unified publication and guide from which students, engineers and researchers new to the field will be able to obtain a quick introduction and overview of the latest developments in all aspects of Social Robotics. On the other hand, it is a unified platform for established researchers to publish relevant work and where healthy discussions and information /result sharing can take place, to further spur the advancements of social robotics as a field. The potential market includes students (undergraduates and postgraduates), mechanical, electrical, and computer engineers/scientists, robo-ethicists, social scientists, university researchers, commercial companies (e.g. in the toy and entertainment industries), amongst many others.

Twitter Search - See What Is Happening Right Now

<http://search.twitter.com/>

Keeping up with interesting news and people you care about is one dimension of Twitter, but what if you need to find out what’s happening in the world beyond your personal timeline? There is an undeniable need to search, filter, and otherwise interact with the volumes of news and information being transmitted to Twitter every second. Twitter Search helps you filter all the real-time information coursing through their service. Craft your queries using their many advanced search operators. You can also use the advanced search page to easily incorporate search operators in your queries. All search results are available via standard Atom and JSON feeds, for use in your readers and mashups. Proceed to their Search API docs for complete details. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to Business Intelligence Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Trackle - Your Personal Tracker On the Web

<http://www.trackle.com/>

Trackle is a new service that tracks all of your personalized information on the Web, all in one place. Offering the industry's most comprehensive index of popularly tracked categories, Trackle keeps tabs on everything in your life, from local, to social to shopping. The service is built with advanced algorithms that provide a layer of intelligence to the tracking process - ensuring timely and relevant results. Users get automatically notified over the Web, email or SMS whenever Trackle finds a match. Trackle is built on top of a robust tracking platform, designed to offer a wide range of tracking services. The service is completely free, secure and privacy compliant. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. ## Journal of Nano Education

<http://www.aspbs.com/jne/>

The Journal of Nano Education (JNE) is a peer-reviewed international journal that aims to provide the most complete and reliable source of information on current developments in nanoscale science, technology, engineering, and medical education. JNE publishes a comprehensive range of articles including topics in the following areas:

- * Nanoscale science, technology, engineering, and medical education at the K-12, undergraduate and graduate levels (formal and informal, including public outreach and dissemination activities);
- * K-12 science teacher education and professional development;
- * Scientific and technological literacy/public understanding of nanoscale science, technology, engineering, and medicine;
- * Curriculum development and assessment;
- * Social and ethical issues associated with nanoscale science, technology, engineering,

and medical research;

- * Workforce preparation (professional and vocational);
- * National and state science standards and their relationships to the goals of nanoeducation initiatives worldwide;
- * Current nanoscale science, technology, engineering, and medical education research;
- * Other pertinent areas of interest to nanoscale science, technology, engineering, and medical researchers & educators. JNE also will serve as a forum for commentary and debate on related issues.

JNE welcomes various types of manuscripts for review and publication consideration, including those utilizing philosophical/theoretical, socio-historical, ethnographic, experimental, quasi-experimental, case study, survey, quantitative, qualitative, or mixed-method approaches.

Haystack Group - Research On Information Access, Analysis, Management and Distribution

<http://groups.csail.mit.edu/haystack/index.html>

Their goal is to make it easier for people to collect, organize, find, visualize, and share their information. One of the biggest obstacles to such information management is the rigid, centrally-planned information models and user interfaces of existing applications and web sites. The data people use in the real world is rarely so well-formed. It is full of exceptions and idiosyncrasies. Their group develops tools for the web and desktop that can flex to hold and present whatever information a user considers important, in whatever way the user considers most effective. ### Vivisimo Bio Meta Cluster

<http://demos.vivisimo.com/projects/BioMed>

Type a query and Vivisimo will send your request to the PubMed, Harrison's Online, MerckManual and TRIPDatabase search engines and parse and cluster the search results. The resulting left-side folders are made automatically from the returned titles and summaries. Clustering makes use of a proprietary General-Science and Biomedical knowledge base of synonyms, acronyms, spelling variants, and other meaning associations which help to interpret the search results. ## SenseBot - Semantic Search Engine Discovering Sense On the Web

<http://www.sensebot.net/>

SenseBot (Beta) is a semantic search engine that generates a text summary of multiple Web pages on the topic of your search query. It uses text mining and multidocument summarization to extract sense from Web pages and present it to the user in a coherent manner. A "Semantic Cloud" of concepts is displayed above the summary, allowing to steer the focus of the results. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. ## Journal of Business Market Management (JMB)

<http://www.jbm-online.net/>

Journal of Business Market Management (JMB) explores all facets of business-to-business marketing, industrial market management and marketing of business services. That includes the areas of technical and commercial sales management but also industrial supply and business buying behaviour. Offering a combination of conceptual papers, empirical research analyses, and case study articles the journal represents a valuable knowledge source and contributes to a better understanding of business market activities. JMB is always keen to receive original articles of theoretical concepts and empirical research, as well as state-of-the-art surveys in the fields of business-to-business marketing, industrial marketing, industrial market management and business market management. Content in English.

VADLO - BioMedical and Life Sciences Search Engine

<http://vadlo.com/>

Vadlo is brought to you by two biology scientists who wish to make it easier to locate biology research related information on the web. Vadlo search engine caters to all branches of life sciences. VADLO allows users to search within five categories: Protocols, Online Tools, Seminars, Databases and Software. Protocols category will let you search for methods, techniques, assays, procedures, reagent recipes, plasmid maps, etc. Online Tools will cater calculators, servers, prediction tools, sequence alignment and manipulation tools, primer design etc. Seminars are essentially powerpoint files for presentations, lectures and talks. Databases will take you to, well, databases, resources, compilations, lists etc. It is here that you can also search for your favorite genes and proteins. Software category is for bioinformatics experts who are looking for codes, scripts, algorithms, executables, downloadable programs and collaborations. ### Mednar - Innovative Medical Search

<http://www.mednar.com/>

Mednar is a free, publicly available medical research site that uses advanced technology to return high quality results. Using state-of-the-art federated search technology from Deep Web Technologies, Mednar accelerates your research by returning the most relevant results from across the World Wide Web, including blogs, wikis, mainstream searches and deep web sources to one, easily navigable page. Each search is done in real-time, searching the sources you select as if you were entering the search term on each individual website yourself. Duplicates are removed, the results weighed for relevance and then ranked according to how closely it matches your search word or phrase. Clicking on any of the results will take you directly to the source website where you can view your information directly. Mednar Accelerates medical search by: a) Credible research sources- Each Mednar source is chosen for its outstanding contributions to the medical search world; b) Intuitive navigation tools- From topical clustering to sort options, Mednar offers you the best in navigation tools while keeping the site simple; c) Individual source selection- Mednar is truly a one-stop search site! Select the sources you wish to search on the advanced search page, or search them all; d) Advanced search features- Looking for a particular title or author? Perhaps a specific year? Mednar allows you to narrow your search by specifying exactly what you are looking for; e) Downloadable results- Email or download your selected results to a citation reader for easy reference offline; f) Five star ranking system- Mednar uses a state-of-the-art five star ranking algorithm to find the best result for the search, whether or not the source can rank results; and g) Automatic alerts- Now, repeat searches can automatically be sent to your email or RSS reader with Mednar alerts. ### Welsh Repository Network

<http://whelf.ac.uk/wrn/index.shtml>

The Welsh Repository Network is a project that has been funded by JISC to create a network of twelve repositories across Wales. Each higher education institution in Wales has been provided with the resources to purchase repository hardware or a hosted repository system along with support and assistance via the Repositories Support Project enabling them to operate effective institutional repositories. This project helps to address the Welsh Assembly Government's Reaching Higher objectives in respect of improving institutional efficiency, increasing capacity and encouraging collaboration, but also helps to make a significant contribution to the overall aims and objectives of the JISC Repositories and Preservation Programme. Case studies documenting the hardware choices made by each of the institutions will be published. The institutions in Wales vary greatly in size and specialism, and the case studies will allow the comparison of the systems chosen by each. ### Regulations.gov - Search

<http://www.regulations.gov/search/index.jsp>

Regulations.gov is your source for all regulations (or rulemakings) issued by U.S. government agencies. On this site, you can find: a) All Federal regulations that are open for public comment (i.e., proposed rules) and closed for comment (i.e., final rules) as published in the Federal Register; b) Many Federal agency notices published in the Federal Register; and c) Additional supporting materials, public comments, and Federal agency guidance and adjudications. When you find a document, you can also submit comments through the web site on those documents that are open for public comment. After Congressional bills become laws, Federal Departments and Agencies are responsible for enforcing those laws through regulations. Departments and Agencies develop regulations through the Federal rulemaking process, most commonly through a notice-and-comment process. In general, Departments and Agencies publish proposed rules that are open for public comment, and after a specified timeframe, the Department or Agency publishes a final rule based on public comments and other information. Regulations.gov users can find Federal proposed and final rules published every business day by the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in the U.S. government's Federal Register, and submit comments through the web site to the Agencies on proposed rules that are open for public comment. The Regulations.gov web site also houses other types of federal information. In addition to Federal regulations, many Departments and Agencies use Regulations.gov to post other types of documents open for public comment, such as Agency significant guidance. Certain Federal agencies also allow the public to initiate an action by filing a submission via Regulations.gov. ### Journal of Chemical Biology (JOCB)

<http://www.springer.com/chemistry/physical/journal/12154>

Chemical Biology is a novel interdisciplinary subject that is still evolving. Interpreting chemical biology as widely as possible, the Journal of Chemical Biology (JOCB) will be open towards the whole spectrum of physical sciences research if it is applied to foster biomedical research. This will include innovative theoretical and experimental approaches and tools being applied to elucidate biological problems. Chemical Biology is not a synonym for Biological Chemistry/Biochemistry, the latter being served by a plethora of life sciences journals, where well-established tools and techniques drawn from the physical sciences are employed to produce innovative biological research. The main acceptance criteria are therefore: the novelty/innovation in the physical sciences part of the presented interdisciplinary research and/or its application in biological research. Manuscripts are expected to convey their research in a fashion that allows both research communities to appreciate its significance and achievements. Thus, experts drawn from the life as well as the physical sciences background referee all manuscripts. The journal is keen to attract articles on novel innovations and discoveries in the physical sciences that can be applied in the cellular environment (in vivo). Important discoveries that have not yet reached the necessary proof for their biological relevance will be presented as short communications. Reviews and opinion papers as well as articles and short communications that present original multidisciplinary research with a clear applicability towards the life sciences are welcome. Being an interdisciplinary journal they would like to encourage reviews on interdisciplinary subjects from authors affiliated with both disciplines as well as investigators affiliated in one discipline with the desire to become engaged in this new interdisciplinary research area. The Journal of Chemical Biology endeavors to create a platform for multidisciplinary physical scientists to publish their achievements, retrieve information, and exchange ideas, opinions and thoughts with the biomedical research community. The latter is addressed in the Journal of Chemical Biology Bulletin, which is published with each issue and will contain information that is relevant for the chemical biology research community. This includes book reviews, meeting reports and announcements as well as information on chemical biology studies and education.

Journal of Interesting Negative Results in Natural Language Processing and Machine Learning (JINR)

<http://jinr.site.uottawa.ca/>

Journal of Interesting Negative Results in Natural Language Processing and Machine Learning (JINR) will bring to the fore research in Natural Language Processing and Machine Learning that uncovers interesting negative results. It is becoming more and more obvious that the research community in general, and those who work NLP and ML in particular, are biased towards publishing successful ideas and experiments. Insofar as both our research areas focus on theories "proven" via empirical methods, we are sure to encounter ideas that fail at the experimental stage for unexpected, and often interesting, reasons. Much can be learned by analyzing why some ideas, while intuitive and plausible, do not work. The importance of counter-examples for disproving conjectures is already well known. Negative results may point to interesting and important open problems. Knowing directions that lead to dead-ends in research can help others avoid replicating paths that take them nowhere. This might accelerate progress or even break through walls! They propose this journal as a resource that gives a voice to negative results which stem from intuitive and justifiable ideas, proven wrong through thorough and well-conducted experiments. They also encourage the submission of short papers/communications presenting counter-examples to usually accepted conjectures or to published papers. The journal's scope encompasses all areas of Natural Language Processing and Machine Learning. Papers published in JINR will meet the highest quality standards, as measured by the originality and significance of the contribution. They will describe research with theoretical and practical significance. All theories and ideas will have to be clearly stated and justified by a deep literature review. Because of the nature of the journal, there should be good justification for trying out the ideas presented. The experiments reported should be shown in a manner that allows their reproduction. The negative results should be explained and justified, along with the reasons why the idea did not lead to the predicted results. The lessons learned should be clearly stated. ## PopPolitics

<http://www.poppolitics.com/>

PopPolitics covers the convergence of politics and pop culture with smart cultural criticism, political analysis and reviews. Founded in 2000 as an online magazine, today PopPolitics is a group blog on current issues and events with a magazine section that continues to publish in-depth analysis. Writers should have an interest in and knowledge of popular culture, and should be able to discuss their subjects within a broad cultural context. In other words, reviews should offer more than a thumbs up or thumbs down critique.

Xstructure - arXiv Search

<http://xstructure.inr.ac.ru/>

Xstructure searches the arXiv ePrint Archive from Cornell University which is an Open access database to 525,110 e-prints in Physics, Mathematics, Computer Science, Quantitative Biology, Quantitative Finance and Statistics. Among the features of Xstructure are: a) Automated generation of hierarchical classification scheme for the papers. The scheme results from classification of the papers in the arxiv database. The only input for the classification is the citation graph. The number of the levels in the hierarchy and the number of the clusters is determined by the algorithm. The algorithm creates the classification scheme, and indexes the papers by the created classification; b) The classification is used to index the new papers. We plan to rebuild the classification scheme regularly. In this way, we will take into account that appearance of new papers may lead to emergence of new themes. Detection of new themes is one of our objectives; c) A number of extra attributes (e.g. Theme name, Authority and Review Articles, etc.) for the elements (themes) of the classification (see Help); and d) Accessibility of the classification in response to search requests via display options, e.g., display as Tree of Themes, and Reference (Citation) Tree. About 10% of papers from arxiv are missed in their database. They are working to decrease this number. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Academic and Scholar Search Engines and Sources Annotated White Paper.

Cancer Biomarkers

<http://www.iospress.nl/loadtop/load.php?isbn=15740153>

This is a new, separate, section of Disease Markers. Concentrating on molecular biomarkers in cancer research, the journal publishes original research findings (and reviews solicited by the Editor) on the subject of the identification of markers associated with the disease processes whether or not they are an integral part of the pathological lesion. The disease markers may include, but are not limited to, genomic, epigenomic, proteomics, cellular and morphologic, and genetic factors predisposing to the disease or indicating the occurrence of the disease. Manuscripts on these factors or biomarkers, either in altered forms, abnormal concentrations or with abnormal tissue distribution leading to disease causation will be accepted.

True Knowledge Answer Engine

<http://www.trueknowledge.com/>

The True Knowledge answer engine is a technology capable of answering questions put to it on any topic. True Knowledge is a pioneer in a new class of Internet search technology that's aimed at dramatically improving the experience of finding known facts on the Web. Their first service - the True Knowledge Answer Engine - is a major step toward fulfilling a longstanding Internet industry goal: providing consumers with instant answers to complex questions, with a single click. Picking up where search engines leave off, True Knowledge's path-breaking Answer Engine automates the laborious, time-consuming work that users generally must do to get final answers to their questions. True Knowledge does this by structuring data in a way that enables computers to work and think like humans do, drawing inferences and conclusions when needed to find the information that's requested. Another key differentiator: True Knowledge is tapping subject matter experts around the globe to build its information repository - bringing together the benefits of machine-driven automation and people-driven intelligence. Leading search engines, portals, and content sites all benefit from working with True Knowledge by providing users with more complete and immersive environments for finding information and with a more finely tuned approach to contextual advertising. With a Cambridge-UK-based business and technology team, True Knowledge debuted its service globally in 2009. ### Journal of Nanoneuroscience

<http://www.aspbs.com/jns/>

Recent advances in nanomaterials indicates that the central nervous system (CNS) is susceptible to nanoparticle induced alterations leading to functional or structural alterations. This knowledge is currently disseminated in vast array of journals dealing with broad subject areas related to pharmacology, toxicology, neuroscience or nanosciences. Thus, there is an urgent need to collect all these diverse information related to nanoscience and brain function in one place using Journal of Nanoneuroscience for the benefit of the scientific community, researchers, health planners, health care providers, policy makers, environmentalists, biologists, chemists, and physicist in this emerging area of medical science. Journal of Nanoneuroscience will publish peer-reviewed original articles, reviews, commentary on the state of the art knowledge in any field mentioned above, brief communication, letters and comments on the articles published in the journal. The contents of the Journal of Nanoneuroscience are multidisciplinary dealing with all branches of neurosciences including neurochemistry, neurobiology, neurogenetics, neurophysiology, neuropathology, neuropharmacology, neuroprotection, neuroregeneration, neuroimmunology, neurosurgery, neuroanatomy, neurology, neuropsychiatry, neurorehabilitation, neurotrauma, neurooncology, neuroradiology, neuroepidemiology, neuroendocrinology, neurocytology, developmental neuroscience, cognitive neuroscience, neurotransmitters, molecular and cellular neuroscience, neuroelectronics, neural engineering, neurosensors, neuropharmaceutics, drug design and drug discovery, drug/alcohol effects, environment and health effects, computational and theoretical neuroscience, biotechnology, biomedicine and other research topics related to nanoscale neuroscience.

<http://www.mediacloud.org/>

Media Cloud is a system that lets you see the flow of the media. The Internet is fundamentally altering the way that news is produced and distributed, but there are few comprehensive approaches to understanding the nature of these changes. Media Cloud automatically builds an archive of news stories and blog posts from the web, applies language processing, and gives you ways to analyze and visualize the data. This is an open-source project, and we will be releasing all of the code soon. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Mentor: An Academic Advising Journal

<http://www.psu.edu/dus/mentor/>

The Mentor: An Academic Advising Journal is a free, Web-based scholarly publication about academic advising in higher education. The publication's goal is to provide a mechanism for the rapid dissemination of new ideas about advising and for ongoing discourse about advising issues. Toward this goal, articles in the journal are published continuously in a current issue in progress. Each article is archived three months after its date of publication. Archived articles are available online indefinitely. Although the journal encourages the submission of research-based articles, it is also interested in articles based on the theory and philosophy of academic advising, descriptions of exemplary practices in advising and innovative advising programs, summaries of conference presentations, and other concise forms of writing related to advising. In addition, the journal solicits responses to a monthly Advising Forum topic. Each monthly topic and the responses submitted by readers are archived at the end of the month.

Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality Effective Health Care Program

<http://effectivehealthcare.ahrq.gov/>

Patients, health care providers (including nurses, doctors and other clinicians), and policymakers all share an interest in making the best health decisions. One of the greatest challenges is finding reliable and practical data that can inform these decisions. The Effective Health Care Program is dedicated to fulfilling this need through high-quality research and getting that information to you, someone who needs to make health care decisions. The Effective Health Care Program follows three approaches to research in order to provide current, unbiased evidence on health care interventions: a) Review and synthesize published and unpublished scientific evidence; 2) Promote and generate new scientific evidence and analytic tools in an accelerated and practical format; and 3) Compile the findings and translate them into a variety of useful formats for stakeholders. ### International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal (IEMJ)

<http://www.springer.com/business/entrepreneurship/journal/11365>

The International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal (IEMJ) provides a venue for high quality manuscripts dealing with entrepreneurship in its broadest sense and the management of entrepreneurial organizations. The editorial board encourages manuscripts that are international in scope; however, readers can also find papers investigating domestic issues with global relevance. IEMJ is dedicated to investigating entrepreneurship across a broad spectrum of organizations, from new ventures to family-owned businesses to large corporations. Manuscripts accepted for publication have important implications for business practice. Papers that focus on basic research, for example, often highlight the potential impact the authors' findings may have on business. A sample of journal topics includes entrepreneurship and its relation to management and strategy; interfaces between entrepreneurship and technological innovation; and the impact of public policy on entrepreneurial ventures. ### EveryBlock - Geographic Filter Newsfeed of Your Neighborhood

<http://www.everyblock.com/>

EveryBlock filters an assortment of local news by location so you can keep track of what's happening on your block, in your neighborhood and all over your city. For a long time, that's been a tough question to answer. In dense, bustling cities like Chicago, New York and San Francisco, the number of daily media reports, government proceedings and local Internet conversations is staggering. Every day, a wealth of local information is created — officials inspect restaurants, journalists cover fires and Web users post photographs — but who has time to sort through all of that? Their mission at EveryBlock is to solve that problem. They aim to collect all of the news and civic goings-on that have happened recently in your city, and make it simple for you to keep track of news in particular areas. They are a geographic filter — a “news feed” for your neighborhood, or, yes, even your block. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. ### Center for Economic and Policy Research (CEPR)

<http://www.cepr.net/>

The Center for Economic and Policy Research (CEPR) was established in 1999 to promote democratic debate on the most important economic and social issues that affect people's lives. In order for citizens to effectively exercise their voices in a democracy, they should be informed about the problems and choices that they face. CEPR is committed to presenting issues in an accurate and understandable manner, so that the public is better prepared to choose among the various policy options. Toward this end, CEPR conducts both professional research and public education. The professional research is oriented towards filling important gaps in the understanding of particular economic and social problems, or the impact of specific policies. The public education portion of CEPR's mission is to present the findings of professional research, both by CEPR and others, in a manner that allows broad segments of the public to know exactly what is at stake in major policy debates. An informed public should be able to choose policies that lead to an improving quality of life, both for people within the United States and around the world. ### Policy and Society: An Interdisciplinary Journal of Policy Research

<http://www.elsevier.com/locate/inca/714836>

Policy and Society is an interdisciplinary journal exploring policy and its manifestations in broader political, economic and social contexts. Each issue of Policy and Society is typically devoted to a single policy theme. The theme may be approached from the perspective of single or multiple disciplines. Policy and Society seeks to explore how policies are shaped by their context and, in turn, shape it. The Journal welcomes submissions that deal with policy theory and practice at the local, national and/or international level, including review issues on the state of the field. Each issue is normally overseen by a special guest editor.

Cross-language Search: The Case of Google Language Tools by Jiangping Chen, Yu Bao

<http://firstmonday.org/htbin/cgiwrap/bin/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/2335>

Abstract:

This paper presents a case study of Google Language Tools, especially its cross-language search service. Cross-language search integrates machine translation (MT) and cross-language information retrieval (CLIR) technologies and allows Web users to search and read pages written in languages different from their search terms. In addition to cross-language search, Google Language Tools provides various language support services to multilingual information access. Our study examines the functions of Google Language Tools and the performance of its cross-language search. The results and analysis show that Google Language Tools are useful for Web users. Its cross-language search service provides quality query translation while the automatic translation of result pages needs further improvement. The paper suggests that cross-language search could be used by different types of Web users. The authors also discuss the strategies and important issues with regard to implementing multilingual information access services for information systems.
