V8N12

December 2010

Welcome to the V8N12 December 2010 record breaking 206 page issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

Awareness Watch™ Spotters

Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review

Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month's featured report covers an extensive Online Research Tools Directory by Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A.; Executive Director of the Virtual Private Library and eSolutions Architect. These research tools are for academic, entrepreneurial, special interest and personal research and are both for the beginners to research as well as advanced researchers and all are available directly over the Internet. These tools are also available readily from the below URLs and most are completely free and open source.

approaches of, ecology, neurobiology and behavior, psychology and psychiatry, endocrinology, developmental biology, pharmacology, cell biology, biochemistry, genetics, molecular biology, and mathematical modeling. The work presented is relevant to each of these disciplines, and others. Rhythms are placed within the context of the functional significance of these rhythms for the health and well-being of relevant organisms, including humans. Every other month, the Journal presents work at the leading edge of understanding the basic nature, mechanisms, and functions underlying the generation, entrainment, and expression of biological rhythms in plants, animals, and humans.

MojoMotor - The Publishing Engine That Does Less

<http://mojomotor.com/>

MojoMotor embeds directly into your existing site, allowing you to edit and manage your content without having to log into a separate control panel. Your site is the control panel. Editing happens directly in your pages. MojoMotor lets you do one thing: Manage your site's content. No extra features or unnecessary complexity. Just your content and the intuitive tools to manage it. MojoMotor pages are standard HTML pages, so any design can be integrated and imported into the system. Pages are managed via a drag-and-drop interface, allowing you to easily and quickly create new pages and change page relationships and hierarchy. Your workflow matters. You can design first, then Import effortlessly into MojoMotor. Need more power? If you outgrow MojoMotor you can import your content into ExpressionEngine. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

BioMedSearch - Biomedical Search Engine

<http://www.biomedsearch.com/>

BioMedSearch is a biomedical search engine that contains NIH/PubMed documents, plus a large collection of theses, dissertations, and other publications not found anywhere else for free, making it the most comprehensive free search on the web. BioMedSearch also provides advanced account features that allow saved searches, alerts, saving documents to portfolios, commenting on documents and portfolios, and sharing documents with other registered users. VisualizeTraffic.com - Visualize How Big a Website Really Is

<http://www.visualizetraffic.com/>

VisualizeTraffic is a free internet service where you can find estimates about how many visitors certain websites get on a daily basis. They then try to visualize this number for you by comparing it to countries that have a similar population count. Furthermore they put it in perspective by comparing it to an image that our brain can easily comprehend. Large numbers only mean something when you have something to compare it with. TalkMiner - Search Inside Video Lectures and Talks

<http://talkminer.com/>

Lecture webcasts are readily available on the Internet. These include class lectures, research seminars and product demonstrations. Webcasts routinely combine presentation slides with either a synchronized audio stream (i.e., podcast) or an audio/video stream. Conventional web search engines retrieve this content if you include "webcast" or "lecture" among your search terms, or search a website that specifically organizes lecture content. But users, particularly students, want to find the place in a lecture when an instructor covers a specific topic. Answering these queries requires a search engine that can search within the webcast to identify important keywords. TalkMiner aggregates and indexes lecture videos available across the internet. The system processes RSS feeds from a variety of sites to collect lecture videos. The system automatically processes the video to generate metadata describing each talk including the video frames that contain slides, their time offsets, and the text recovered from those frames by optical character recognition. TalkMiner does not maintain a copy of the original videos. When a user plays a lecture, the video is played from the original website on which the lecture video is hosted. As a result, storage requirements for TalkMiner are modest. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. AudioTag.info - Free Music Recognition Service

<http://audiotag.info/>

AudioTag.info — is a free music-recognition service. It allows you to identify almost any unknown piece of music quickly and easily. Its use is very simple: you upload a short audio fragment (even 15 seconds are enough) or an entire song, the robot analyzes it and provides you with the information about the track title, artist name, album title, etc. Your audio fragment can be in almost any file format and of almost any quality (aurally recognizable, of course) — it can be an MP3 file downloaded from the Internet or a short recording made with your old tape recorder and stored as a low-quality .WAV-file. ShoppingBots and Online Shopping Resources 2011

<http://www.ShoppingBots.info/>

The latest research shows that when prospects search for your company on the Internet, the top 10 listings are likely to include the following:

- a) 3 listings from consumer posts to blogs, message boards, and opinion sites,
- b) 2 listings from experts,
- c) 2 listings from your own corporate site,
- d) 1 listing from an online publication, and
- e) 2 listings from other sources.

This confirms the need for immediate business intelligence to constantly monitor and evaluate the prospects ongoing searching results for your company, brand, and product. [Marcus P. The PIRUS2 Project

<http://www.cranfieldlibrary.cranfield.ac.uk/pirus2/>

PIRUS2, sponsored by JISC (the United Kingdom Joint Information Systems Committee) builds on the outcomes and recommendations of the original PIRUS (Publisher and Institutional Repository Usage Statistics) project, also funded by JISC, which was completed in January 2009. The full report of the original PIRUS project may be found at: <http://tinyurl.com/PIRUSreport1>. The original PIRUS project demonstrated that it is technically feasible to create, record and consolidate usage statistics for individual articles using data from repositories and publishers, despite the diversity of organizational and technical environments in which they operate. If this is to be translated into a new, implementable COUNTER standard and protocol, further research and development will be required, specifically in the following areas: a) Technical: further tests, with a wider range of repositories and a larger volume of data, will be required to ensure that the proposed protocols and tracker codes are scalable/extensible and work in the major repository environments; b) Organizational: the nature and mission of the central clearing house/houses proposed in the original project has to be developed, and candidate organizations identified and tested; c) Economic: we need to assess the costs for repositories and publishers of generating the required usage reports, as well as the costs of any central clearing house/houses; investigate how these costs could be allocated between stakeholders; and d) Advocacy: the broad support of all the major stakeholder groups (repositories, publishers, authors) will be required. Intellectual property, privacy and financial issues will have to be addressed. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Study of Open Access Publishing (SOAPs)

<http://project-soap.eu/>

The SOAP project aims to deliver to the European Commission, publishers, libraries and research communities a description and analysis of models of open access publishing, so that these key players may ascertain which model, or combination and variation of models, will enable them to make a smooth transition to open access publishing. Our objectives are stipulated in the following: a) The SOAP project will describe and analyse open access publishing. It will compare and contrast business models. Such an approach will allow for a better understanding of the marketplace as well as the opportunities and risks associated with open access publishing; and b) The SOAP project will conduct a large scale survey that will investigate the European Research Area (ERA) scholars' requirements for scientific publishing. It is anticipated that the survey's findings will uncover what researchers as authors are willing to trade off (and what they are not) in the transition to open access publishing. Overall, the SOAP project intends to gather information, generate data and create knowledge that will enhance the search for further innovation in digital publishing in Europe, so that researchers will reap the benefits of these innovations and publishers will better understand market opportunities. This is an academic, print and online peer-reviewed journal in the field of economics and philosophy of science. This Journal is devoted to ideas that question the methodological premises of economics as science. Scholars from all fields of scientific concern about inquiry of economical phenomena, but especially from disciplines such as political economy, sociology, political science, statistics and mathematics, philosophy of science, and history, are invited to submit their contributions. The Journal is divided into three parts: 'Articles', 'Reviews' and 'Comments', which equally concur in developing a process of cumulative knowledge. Understanding causation relative to evolutions of humankind's economic progress is meant to represent the philosophical foundation of economics. The journal publishes papers in English, but German and French may also be accepted as languages of publication.

Advances in Information Mining

<http://www.bioinfo.in/contents.php?id=32&page=aim>

Advances in Information Mining aims to publish and disseminate knowledge on information retrieval including theoretical, experimental and applied research. Theoretical research reports a significant conceptual advance in the design of algorithms or other processes for some information retrieval task. Experimental research details a test of one or more theoretical ideas in a laboratory or natural setting. Application research cover successful application of some already established technique to a significant real world problem involving information retrieval. Information retrieval overlaps with a variety of technical and behavioral fields. As a result, the journal includes papers, which unify concepts across several traditional disciplinary boundaries, with specific application to problems of information retrieval. The journal is targeted at both academic researchers and practicing IT professionals. This journal serves as an international forum for theory and experiment in information retrieval and its application in the networked information environment. Advances in Information Mining is available free of charge as an Open Access journal on the Internet. Articles available in PDF format.

Muvizu - 3D Animation for Everyone

<http://www.muvizu.com/>

The free Muvizu 3D animation software and this Muvizu website are the ever-evolving creations of Digimania, a company based in Glasgow, Scotland. Until recently, Digimania Ltd. was part of DA Group which, way back in the last century, created the first virtual newsreader, Ananova. Many years later, with an eclectic mix of 3D projects done and dusted (including animated Shakespeare shorts for the BBC and a TV show series with Channel 4), the artists and developers started work on the Muvizu project. Their 100-word spiel for industry shows and brochures describes our work thus: UK-based Digimania develops Muvizu: free 3D animation software, integrated with an online collaborative community, that gives individuals or groups the power of Unreal Engine 3 to create compelling videos in minutes, not months. You don't need specialist kit or training, just a good idea. Their motto is: "Direct, don't animate." Q-Sensir - Your Guide Through the World of Information

<http://www.qsensei.com/>

Q-Sensei provides users with easy access to all kinds of information and makes it possible to work with it in a more in-depth and detailed way. Their solution: a multi-linear search. Q-Sensei analyzes both the content of an object as well as the corresponding metadata. Based on this approach, information is consolidated and connections between various objects are made right away. In contrast to more conventional search engines, helpful search suggestions and recommendations are displayed, sorted into categories such as keywords, author or year of publication. By combining and selecting these search suggestions, data pools of any size can be easily explored, making multi-linear search possible. The result: Anyone can explore any given data collection better than ever before and find more relevant, valuable information much faster and completely intuitively. Q-Sensei offers more than just a search. The multi-linear search is enhanced by the implementation of real-time, personalization and social search capabilities. Users can design the search according to their own personal preferences, enrich data entries or tag search results. Useful tools and features like Watch Lists and Widgets are also available, making working with and sharing information easier than ever before. Aniscartujo SSL Tunnel

<https://aniscartujo.com/ssl tunnel/>

A little application that will reside on your system "the tunnel client" will interact with our servers to create the encrypted tunnel. So, all the applications configured to use the tunnel will establish a encrypted connection with our servers. Features include: a) Hide your IP, protect your identity; b) Encrypt all your internet traffic with SSL; c) Works theoretically with any application (Web / Email / P2P / IM / Etc...); and d) Automatically configure most common applications (Windows / Outlook Express / Internet Explorer / Firefox / Windows Live Messenger / Yahoo Messenger). Advantages include: 1) Connect securely from any place that you are, even if you use a unencrypted public WIFI; 2) Prevent monitoring of you internet activity; and 3) Bypass school or work filters and connect to any site that you want. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Privacy Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

NotePub - Online Notepad

<http://notepub.com/>

Use NotePub to save, share, and search your notes and emails. With NotePub you can: a) Take notes including images, files, links, and tags; b) Search your notes and emails using tags and keywords; c) Make your notes public, private, or share with a group; d) Encrypt private data. Back up and edit offline; and e) Get emails only from people you choose. Send attachments from your mobile to NotePub. In brief, NotePub provides real time sharing and searching of notes with read/write permissions set for each note and user. NotePub is very straightforward, yet it lets you do most things you could with other types of software such as blogs, wikis, forums, email, chat, and social networks. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Entrepreneurial Resources Subject Tracer™.

All Results Journals: Biol

More than 60% of the experiments fail to produce results or expected discoveries. From an objective point of view, this high percentage of "failed" research generates high level pieces of knowledge. Generally, all these experiments have not been published anywhere as they have been considered useless for our research target. The objective of "The All Results Journals: Biology" focuses on recovering and publishing these valuable pieces of information in Biology. These key experiments must be considered vital for the development of science. They are the catalyst for a real science-based empirical knowledge. The journal will cover negative (or "secondary") experiments coming from all disciplines of Biology (Botany, Cell Biology, Genetics, Ecology, Microbiology, etc). An article in The All Results Journals should be created to show the failed experiments tuning methods or reactions. Articles should present experimental discoveries, interpret their significance and establish perspective with respect to earlier work of the author. It is also advisable to cite the work where the experiments has already been tuned and published.

Ideavibes - The Crowd Is Speaking ... Are You Listening

<http://www.ideavibes.com/>

Ideavibes offers two web applications that can be tailored to meet your organization's needs. 1) The Ideavibes Crowdsourcing App bridges the gap between enterprise-scale crowdsourcing solutions and website voting widgets. It enables focused, affordable and effective campaigns that create greater stakeholder, customer, citizen and donor engagement and participation; and 2) The Ideavibes Crowdfunding App is the only customizable, easy-to-deploy crowdfunding app that provides all the features of the Crowdsourcing App, along with the ability to have the crowd fund ideas or projects. This will be added to Entrepreneurial Resources Subject Tracer™.

EDUdemic - Connecting Education and Social Media

<http://edudemic.com/>

Social media is making a big impact on education. The threading of new technology with old standards has created new and exciting opportunities for teachers, school administrators, and students. What is the best way to improve education using social media? That's the big question that Edudemic hopes to answer. You'll find regular doses of helpful ideas, infographics, news, videos, and more when you visit Edudemic. Do you ever wonder how schools, universities, colleges, and large groups in general should use social media? Students are often early adopters, frequent users, and overall lovers of technology and social media. Edudemic is run by a few graduate students and teachers with a passion for learning and educating. This has been added to Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This will be added to Social Informatics Subject Tracer™.

Skype Education - Skype in the Classroom Directory

<http://blogs.skype.com/classroom-pre-register/>

A free directory that connects teachers and helps them use Skype to enrich students' educational experience. There are lots of teachers out there doing amazing things with Skype. But many of them say their biggest obstacle is finding other teachers and classes to connect with. Skype is developing a free online directory to make it easy for teachers to connect with other teachers and resources from around the world. The directory will launch in December in English only. WikiSeer - Keynotes of Text in Real-Time

<http://www.wikiseer.com/>

WikiSeer provides you with a faster and richer reading experience by providing keynotes of text in real-time. With WikiSeer, you can preview the most significant and informative content of a web page, before deciding to visit it. It's the same as watching a movie preview, and then deciding to watch the movie. Instead of reading the entire text and then discovering its not of much use, you can now preview the keynotes, and then make a decision whether to read the original text entirely. This way, you save your time and get to read the content that you are really interested in. WikiSeer comes in handy wherever there is electronic text. Following are just some of the examples where WikiSeer can be used to preview the keynotes: a) News articles; b) Research papers; c) Blogs; d) Online articles; e) Legal documents; f) Medical documents; g) Patents; and h) Books. International Journal of Legal Information (IJLI)

<http://www.iall.org/journal.htm>

The International Journal of Legal Information (IJLI), the official publication of the International Association of Law Libraries, is issued three times a year: Spring, Summer and Winter. It seeks to advance the exchange of legal information throughout the world. Under the direction of its international editorial board and advisors, the IJLI serves the global community of law librarians, legal scholars, and practitioners through the publication of original articles, conference papers, bibliographies, book reviews, documents concerning law and law-related information.

NowRelevant.com - Everything About Your Subject For the Past Two Weeks

<http://www.nowrelevant.com/>

By using advanced cloud computing algorithms, the worldwide software project known as "The Internet Time Machine", when flipped around, is also a high powered search engine that has now opened up to the public. NowRelevant.com is the link to The Internet Time Machine's backend search engine that gives you every written word about a subject for the past 14 days. It monitors millions of sources and feeds to give you the most up to date and pertinent information on your subject. With the historical clutter that permeates the web (not all of the html pages are clutter, but much of it is irrelevant now) we decided to set up a complex system of filtering and algorithms to give you just discussions and information about your subject for the past 14 days only. Linked Data Tools: Semantic Web for the Masses by Lisa Goddard and Gillian Byrne

<http://www.uic.edu/htbin/cgiwrap/bin/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/3120>

Abstract:

Semantic Web technologies have immense potential to transform the Internet into a distributed reasoning machine that will not only execute extremely precise searches, but will also have the ability to analyze the data it finds to create new knowledge. This paper examines the state of Semantic Web (also known as Linked Data) tools and infrastructure, to determine whether semantic technologies are sufficiently mature for non-expert use, and to identify some of the obstacles to global Linked Data implementation.
