V9N11

November 2011

Welcome to the V9N11 November 2011 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month’s featured report covers two areas: Finding People Resources and Sites and Finding Experts By Using the Internet. These sites, resources and tools bring together all the latest information on each of the subjects from the Internet. These resources will make an excellent bookmark for online finding people and finding experts and to develop a critical path and network that will guide you through all the latest happenings in these areas! Resources for this report were taken from my below Subject Tracers™:

iFixIt - Free Repair Manual

<http://www.ifixit.com/>

They make it easy for you to fix things yourself with their online step-by-step repair guides, troubleshooting tips, and thriving community of repair technicians who want to help. Or, check out our teardowns — sneak-peeks inside the latest gadgets. What if everyone had access to a free repair manual for everything they owned? That's their mission. Share your knowledge and help us fix the world. Repair is recycling! The best way to keep electronics out of landfills is to keep them working longer. Toxic electronic waste is a global problem that we are working to solve. Self repair saves you money and helps the environment! This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Updated> Directory Resources - Directory of Directories

<http://www.DirectoryResources.info/>

The above is a white paper link compilation of the Directory Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog by Internet Expert Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A. This Directory of Directories covers all the competent and well maintained directories available from the Internet and makes for an excellent alternative search resource! It is a 41 page .pdf document 289KB. [Updated October 1, 2011] Other white papers are available by clicking here.

Project Gutenberg - Free eBooks

<http://www.gutenberg.org/>

Project Gutenberg offers over 36,000 free ebooks to download to your PC, Kindle, Android, iOS or other portable device. Choose between ePub, Kindle, HTML and simple text formats. They carry high quality ebooks: All their ebooks were previously published by bona fide publishers. They digitized and diligently proofed them with the help of thousands of volunteers. Over 100,000 free ebooks are available through our Partners, Affiliates and Resources. Project Gutenberg was founded by Michael Hart who passed away September 6, 2011. Here is their brief obituary and related documents. This has been added to Reference Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

HackNotifier - Protect Yourself From Hackers

<https://www.hacknotifier.com/>

Hackers regularly hack into websites and publicly release complete databases of accounts. HackNotifier allows you to check if your email was ever involved any of these leaks. HackNotifier is completely safe to use. They take your privacy seriously and do not store any of the emails that you check on their website. They use a 256-bit secured and encrypted SSL connection. HackNotifier is constantly updating its database and on the lookout for new intrusions. You can choose to get instantly alerted through email and text if one of your accounts are ever compromised. ### DMO (Data Mining Ontology) Foundry

<http://www.dmo-foundry.org/>

The goal of the DMO Foundry is to gather the most significant ontologies concerning data mining and the different algorithms and resources that have been developed to support the knowledge discovery process. Each ontology in the DMO Foundry is freely available for browsing and open discussion, as well as collaborative development, by data mining specialists all over the world. For this reason, each ontology is associated with a Quality Committee and its own Collaborative Ontology Development Platform (CODEP). As its name suggests, the role of the Quality Committee is to monitor and screen community contributions in order to ensure that the resulting ontology meets the highest standards of consistency and accuracy. The CODEP provides the infrastructure that allows visitors to browse and drill down the ontology, discuss its strengths and weaknesses, suggest measures for extension or refinement, or participate more directly in ontology development. This will be added to Data Mining Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Glassboard - Know Who You Are Sharing With

<http://glassboard.com/>

Glassboard is an app for sharing privately with groups. Think Facebook but private, and focused around groups. In Glassboard, you create 'boards' which are groups of people around a common interest, and you can share messages, comments, photos, videos, and even your location (when appropriate). Think of each board as a silo. If you have a board that shares dog pictures, and a board that talks about classic cars, neither group will ever know about the other. Your dog pics will only be seen by the people in dog pics, and talk about classic cars will only be shared with the classic cars board members. And it's free! Download the app for your Android phone, iPhone, or Windows Phone 7. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Publications.USA.gov - United States Publications

<http://publications.usa.gov/>

For more than 40 years, the Federal Citizen Information Center (FCIC) has been a trusted one-stop source for answers to questions about consumer problems and government services. FCIC, part of the General Services Administration's Office of Citizen Services and Innovative Technologies, has traditionally provided publications to consumers via the publications distribution center in Pueblo, Colorado. The Pueblo.GSA.gov website was where consumers could go to find information and order publications on a variety of topics from the federal government. Publications.USA.gov replaces the former Pueblo.GSA.gov. The new site provides better navigation; search; shopping experience; and now some of your favorite publications in popular e-reader formats. Additionally, they will use social media channels to keep you informed of new publications. Their mission is to get accurate, complete and concise government information into consumers' hands when, where, and how they want and need it to make important life decisions. ## The 2012 Statistical Abstract - The National Data Book

<http://www.census.gov/compendia/statab/>

The Statistical Abstract of the United States is the standard summary of statistics on the social, political, and economic organization of the United States. It is also designed to serve as a guide to other statistical publications and sources. The latter function is served by the introductory text to each section, the source note appearing below each table, and Appendix I, which comprises the Guide to Sources of Statistics, the Guide to State Statistical Abstracts, and the Guide to Foreign Statistical Abstracts. This volume includes a selection of data from many statistical sources, both government and private. Publications cited as sources usually contain additional statistical detail and more comprehensive discussions of definitions and concepts. Data not available in publications issued by the contributing agency but obtained from the Internet or unpublished records are identified in the source notes. More information on the subjects covered in the tables so noted may generally be obtained from the source. Although emphasis in the Statistical Abstract is primarily given to national data, many tables present data for regions and individual states and a smaller number for metropolitan areas and cities. Appendix II, Metropolitan and Micropolitan Statistical Areas: Concepts, Components, and Population, presents explanatory text, a complete current listing and population data for metropolitan and micropolitan areas defined as of December 2009. Statistics for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and for island areas of the United States are included in many state tables and are supplemented by information in Section 29. Additional information for states, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, and other small units, as well as more historical data are available in various supplements to the Abstract. This has been added to Statistics Resources Subject Tracer™. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™. ### The Internet of Things Infographic

<http://newsroom.intel.com/docs/DOC-2297>

The time was when the internet was people on their PCs sending email and surfing web content dished up by servers. Sure, it was around before that in its academic/military guise, but as far as the public consciousness was concerned, PCs, laptops, email and the web, was all the internet meant. A few years ago that changed, imperceptibly at first, such that now the recurrent understanding of the internet is far more diverse, feral even. Myriad devices and people creating content in multiple forms, for consumption on an increasing array of devices. And it's changing industry too- internet-connected combine harvesters, anyone? It has become known as the internet of things, guided by the fact that if something has an on/off switch, it should probably compute, and if it is going to compute, it should also connect to the internet. The proliferation is still happening, and this press kit, based around an infographic that attempts to illustrate this phenomenon, explores various aspects of "The Internet of Things." This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. This has been added to the World Wide Web Reference Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Transparency Data

International Journal of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants (IJMAP)

<http://www.openaccessscience.com/index.php/journals/ijmap>

The International Journal of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants (IJMAP) is English language, open access, peer-reviewed, online, quarterly journal that promotes the exchange of knowledge and research in the following areas:

- * Basic research on Medicinal and Aromatic Plants, Ethnopharmacology, Fitoterapia, Phytomedicines.
- * Ecological, taxonomical, conservational, phenological, reproductive, cultivational, biological, biochemical, chemical, technological and economical aspects.
- * Impacts of environmental degradation and climate change.

The scope of journal is vast and not limited to the aforesaid topics only, rather it extends to all the aspects of medicinal and aromatic plants research. The journal welcomes the submission of manuscripts that meet the general criteria of significance and scientific excellence. The journal aims to encourage communication between scientists in disparate fields who share a common interest in medicinal and aromatic plants. The journal strives to bridge the gap between researchers, academicians, industrialists, farm managers, policy makers and society to benefit all stakeholders. They encourage submission of papers that will have the strongest interest and value to the journal's international readership. Some key features of papers with strong interest include:

- * Studies on the properties of rare and lesser known MAPs.
- * Novel ideas or approaches to important challenges in the field of MAP research.
- * Studies that address a population of interest beyond the scale of single research sites.
- * Review Articles on timely and important topics.
- * Interdisciplinary research involving MAPs.

Easy Notecards - Create and Study Notecards for Your Textbooks

<http://www.easynotecards.com/index>

Easy Notecards is an online studying tool that uses interactive notecards to make it quick and easy for you to learn new material. Easy Notecards is a great tool for both students and teachers. What sets Easy Notecards apart from the other notecard/flashcard sites out there is it allows you to create notecards for a specific book. Easy Notecards even goes one step further by allowing you to enter the chapter(s) the notecards are for. This makes it so much easier to find what you are looking for since Easy Notecards organizes notecards by chapters within a book. And since each notecard set has a Helpfulness Rating you won't waste time studying notecards that aren't very good. This will be added to Student Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD)

<http://www.oecd.org/home/>

The mission of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) is to promote policies that will improve the economic and social well-being of people around the world. The OECD provides a forum in which governments can work together to share experiences and seek solutions to common problems. They work with governments to understand what drives economic, social and environmental change. They measure productivity and global flows of trade and investment. They analyse and compare data to predict future trends. They set international standards on a wide range of things, from agriculture and tax to the safety of chemicals. They look, too, at issues that directly affect the lives of ordinary people, like how much they pay in taxes and social security, and how much leisure time they can take. They compare how different countries' school systems are readying their young people for modern life, and how different countries' pension systems will look after their citizens in old age. Drawing on facts and real-life experience, they recommend policies designed to make the lives of ordinary people better. They work with business, through the Business and Industry Advisory Committee to the OECD, and with labor, through the Trade Union Advisory Committee. They have active contacts as well with other civil society organizations. The common thread of their work is a shared commitment to market economies backed by democratic institutions and focused on the well being of all citizens. Along the way, they also set out to make life harder for the terrorists, tax dodgers, crooked businessmen and others whose actions undermine a fair and open society.

rNews: Embedding Metadata in Online News

<http://dev.iptc.org/rNews>

rNews is a proposed standard for using RDFa to annotate news-specific metadata in HTML documents. The rNews proposal has been developed by the IPTC, a consortium of the world's major news agencies, news publishers and news industry vendors. rNews is currently in draft form and the IPTC welcomes feedback on how to improve the standard in the rNews Forum. Every web page is written in the Hypertext Markup Language (HTML). HTML provides web authors with the ability to specify the exact layout and appearance of web documents. For example, a news publisher might use HTML to specify that, on an article page, the region containing the headline be displayed in a 16-point bold typeface. This styling information makes it easy for human readers to identify this region as an article's headline. Unfortunately, a machine looking for the headline in an HTML document has only display information to guide its search. As styling is inconsistent across publisher sites and since multiple regions on a page may use the same style, it is very difficult for a machine to reliably discover an article's headline through style alone. News publishers can solve this problem through semantic markup. Semantic markup allows publishers to attach specific meanings to various regions of an article page. One such semantic markup standard is called RDFa. RDFa is a framework for embedding semantic markup into HTML documents, but to apply RDFa to a specific domain it is necessary to develop terminology and data models specific to that domain. rNews specifies the terminology and data model required to embed news specific metadata into HTML documents. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

BookmarkQ - Creates an Easy Shareable URL That Points Directly To a Quote On a Website

<http://bquot.com/>

BookmarkQ is a utility that allows users to create a short URL to a selected text on a Web page. This is helpful, when you wish people that you share a URL with would focus on a specific Web page area (see Use Cases for more information). The concept is very similar to other URL shortener services, with the exception that BookmarkQ not only restores the location of the original page, but also reveals and highlights the originally selected text. How does BookmarkQ work? BookmarkQ "remembers" the location of the selected text along with the original Web site URL. When URL created with BookmarkQ is opened in Web browser, the original site is presented through bquot.com proxy. Originally selected text is then found on the page and revealed. This has been added to the tools section of Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

PdfMasher - Tool That Converts PDF Articles to MOBI and EPUB

<http://www.hardcoded.net/pdfmasher/>

PdfMasher is a tool to convert PDF articles (newspaper, academic) to MOBI or EPUB documents. Most ebook readers support PDF files natively, but it's often a real pain to read those documents because we don't have font size control over the document like we have with native ebooks. In many cases, we have to use the zooming feature and it's just a pain. Another drawback of PDFs on ebook readers is that annotations are not supported. There are already tools to convert PDFs to ebooks like Calibre, but what they do is that they try to guess the role of each piece of text in the PDF (and that's if you're lucky). They think that in all but the simplest cases, it's a mistake to think that anything short of an AI can do that kind of guessing. Enter PdfMasher. PdfMasher asks the user about the role of each piece of text, and does it in an efficient manner. Your PDF has a header on each page and you don't want them to litter your text? Sort text elements by Y-position (thus grouping them all together), shift select the elements and flag them as ignored. They will not appear on your final HTML. Your PDF has footnotes on many pages? Sort your elements by text content (thus grouping all elements with the text starting with a number together) and flag them as footnotes. They will be moved to the end of the document, and PdfMasher will try to create hyperlinks to footnote references. ## Awarenesswatch™ Paper Review

Scientists Online: A Framework for the Analysis of Internet Profiles by Helena Bukvova

<http://firstmonday.org/htbin/cgiwrap/bin/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/3584>

Abstract:

Many scientists use the Internet to present themselves and their work. The content they create could be used to improve the awareness and communication within the scientific community. This requires a sound understanding of the contents on scientists' profiles, especially with regard to their structure. Existing literature offers mostly basic categorisation, focusing only on single platforms. This article presents a study of scientists' profiles on institutional and private Web pages, social networking services, blogs, and microblogs. The aim of the study was to describe structures within the profile contents. For this purpose, 79 profiles belonging to 15 German scientists were identified and analysed using the constructivist grounded theory method. The result was a framework, suitable for structuring and further analysis of scientists' profiles. The framework describes three levels for the study of profiles: profile networks, profile instances, and content units. The content on the profiles can be classified with regard to its type, verbosity, and placement. The developed framework serves as a basic structure for further research into scientists' online self-presentation.
